MORE THAN A SCORE OF SHIPS SUNK IN GREAT SEA BATTLE

German Victory Grows in Extent With Later Reports From London Which Admit Loss of Three Battle Cruisers, the Queen Mary, Indefatigable and Invincible—Berlin Holds Thanksgiving—Bodies and Oil in Quantities Cover Seas in Vicinity of Gigantic Naval Engagement.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 3.—Between 125 and 150 warships of various classes, as well as Zeppelins are believed to have taken part in the mighty sea battle between the British and German fleets in the North Sea on Wednesday in which twenty-five ships at least were sunk.

The British empire today awaited further details of the gigantic engagement, the greatest in modern history, with feverish anxiety, hoping that late reports of the admiralty would increase the number of German victims destroyed by English men of war.

Although no official information was forthcoming as to the probable loss of life belief was expressed that it would be above 5,000 and might rise to 7,500.

Details furnished by eye-witnesses of the fight state that it took place in foggy weather and amidst dense clouds of smoke from the funnels and guns of the warships.

The aggregate tonnage of the ships lost on both sides is placed at approximately 155,000 and the money value of the ships sunk is estimated at $155,000,000.

Bodies and Oil on Water.

The Queen Mary, Indefatigable and Invincible were the first battle cruisers the British admiralty has admitted losing since the war began.

It is believed that the British ships were in the majority although fighting conditions were more favorable for the Germans as it is pointed out in the official announcement of the admiralty that they were "seen" by the Germans.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says that fishermen arriving at Esbjerg report seeing outside the Blaavands Huk hundreds of bodies of British and German sailors. The fishermen also observed large quantities of oil on the surface of the sea apparently from submarines. The water was covered with wreckage, showing parts of ships, life boats and pieces of uniforms.

London Press Comment.

The newspapers, while admitting that the navy suffered serious losses in the fight off the Danish coast, declare that the engagement has no effect on the naval position of the country. In some quarters the belief was expressed that the German navy might be emboldened by the British losses to try more raids on a bigger scale, but if this result follows it would unquestionably prove a disastrous policy.

The Times suggests that the British were overconfident in their naval strength.

The naval correspondent of the Post explains the outcome of the battle in this fashion: "German heavy metal got British light metal at close range and gave it severe punishment. The fight must have been at close range and the German battleships, well protected by their heavy Krupp armor, out-matched our cruisers in a fight for which they were not suited."

"Our advance guard, in fact, engaged the German main guard and the result could not have been otherwise. But when our main forces came into position for the engagement the Germans had to flee and were driven into port."

Germans Badly Scattered.

"There is one thing, however, which we have the right to demand in face of our losses. There must be no more trifling with the powers of our fleet."

"That the German fleet was badly scattered in its flight is indicated by the news coming from Copenhagen. It was stated in the dispatches that the German fleet was compelled to separate when the more powerful units of the British fleet got within hailing distance and some of them are believed to be at sea. The possibility was suggested that elements of the British fleet had cut off the escape of some of the German ships."

Unofficial dispatches state that the engagement lasted from twelve to twenty hours and was a running fight.

Drawler Tells of Fight.

One of the eye-witnesses of the battle, Captain Hunt, of the steam trawler, described how the fleeing German ships rolled southward at top speed while the British ships, aided by their searchlights, rained shells around the fugitives.

"There were seven big German ships of war in the part of the fleet," said Captain Hunt. "It was about 10:45 o'clock on Wednesday night and the ships were travelling at what I reckoned to be nearly 30 knots."

LOSSES LONDON ADMITS.

The war craft admitted lost by the British admiralty:

Battle cruisers Queen Mary, Invincible and Indefatigable; light cruisers Defence, Black Prince and Warrior and the destroyers Tipperary, Turbulent, Fortune, Sparrow Hawk and three others unnamed.

The foregoing list does not contain the battleship Warspite which the Germans claim to have sent to the bottom.

The war craft admitted lost or missing by the German admiralty: Pre-dreadnought Pommern and the cruisers Frauenlob and Wiesbaden.

German war craft claimed by the British to have been sunk:

Battle cruisers Derfflinger dreadnought of the Kaiser class and six destroyers.

The Warrior was not sunk in the engagement but the British admiralty admitted that she was abandoned.

miles an hour. The British ships were following about 200 yards behind the fugitives. The searchlights were turned full upon the German ships and shells were being poured from every gun. The noise was deafening and the men of war were completely enveloped by dense clouds of smoke which rolled from the funnels and from the busy guns.

Fog and Smoke Thick.

"So dense was the coal and gun powder smoke and so thick was the weather that, despite our nearness we could see only the dim outlines of the warships."

"The fog and darkness was pierced by the red glare from the big naval guns."

"Around the German ships huge columns of water rose high into the air like geysers as the shells from the English men of war fell around them."

"Two of the German dreadnoughts caught on fire and we could see smoke rolling up through their superstructure in the lurid glare. The flight and pursuit was on at top speed when the vessels got beyond our vision."

"The destruction of three battle cruisers by German gunfire has revived reports that were current some time ago that monster 17-inch guns were being installed upon German warships to outrange the guns on the ships of every other navy."

There were six Zeppelins in the air fleet which took part in the fight, according to a dispatch to the Mail from Copenhagen. One of them is reported to have been badly damaged by British gunfire.

The presence of so formidable a British fleet near Heligoland, the German base, has aroused much speculation here.

Both fleets were reinforced before the battle ended by the Germans taking flight.

Details of this feature of the engagement are furnished by the following despatch from Copenhagen: "The captain of the Danish steamship Naesborg gives the following account of the sea fight: 'When the Naesborg was 95 miles west of Cape Hantsholm on the northwest coast of Jutland, a few small British warships appeared pursued by the German fleet. Suddenly the British warships turned and steamed westward, violently shelled. In a few minutes a large number of British dreadnoughts and cruisers appeared from the north and west. The British then began attacking the German ships which were reinforced from the south. A violent fight raged. The sea was filled with smoke and the air in a state of uproar.'

"At last the German fleet withdrew southward pursued by the British while several more British ships appeared coming from the westward. The German fleet was divided in two parts, one of which escaped. I don't know the fate of the other."

It is reported that Admiral Horace Hood flew his flag on the destroyed battle cruiser Invincible as second in command of the battle cruiser squadron.

One Zeppelin Destroyed.

Copenhagen, June 3.—A Zeppelin airship was destroyed during the naval battle between German and British fleets off Jutland on Wednesday. The crew perished. Fishermen arriving at Leding today declared that they had seen the airship set on fire by British shells and destroyed at a point 40 miles off the Thordor canal.

Rejoicing in Berlin.

Berlin, June 3.—All Germany today gave itself over to rejoicing for the naval victory won from the British after a terrific struggle south of the Skagerrack on Wednesday.

The city is decked with flags. The school children were given a holiday and there was a triumphant procession through Unter den Linden.

Verdun and the food question were temporarily eclipsed. The newspapers print glowing accounts of the terrific smash delivered at the British navy, and declare that the Kaiser's navy has now shown itself equal to any task it may be called upon to perform.

Thanksgiving services were held in a number of churches and pictures of Vice-Admiral Reinhardt Scheer, commander of the high seas fleet, and Admiral von Capelle, the successor of Admiral von Tirpitz, were prominently displayed everywhere.

"Rats Out of Holes."

It is generally held that the fleet's activity is due to the Kaiser's energetic demands when he made his recent visit to Wilhelmshaven.

"The arrogant presumption of England has been rent," says the Cologne Gazette, in commenting on the fight. "Now the rats have once more left their safe holes and have bitten through, not the famous oak wall which was Great Britain's bulwark on the sea in Lord Nelson's time, but through iron armored turrets under the union jack in a naval battle more formidable than any fought since the days of Trafalgar."

(The allusion to rats leaving their holes referred to a statement made by Winston Churchill when he was first lord of the admiralty in the British cabinet. He declared that if the German fleet did not come out and fight, the British would go after them and dig them out like rats.)

President Kaempf of the Reichstag in a speech before that body thanked the German navy on behalf of the Reichstag for the brilliant achievements of the Germans in the North Sea, he lamented the death of so many brave seamen who died in the conflict.

"This has been demonstrated, that our fleet is able to oppose superior British forces and gain victory," said President Kaempf. "We thank the whole navy for the great victory just now won."

The members rose from their seats in honor of the occasion, and then Vice-Admiral Heibinghaus read a report on the battle giving further details. It follows:

One Destroyed Six Destroyers.

"On the afternoon of May 31 our fleet engaged in combat very superior British forces of at least 34 modern great battleships. The battle went on until 9 o'clock at night. During the night there were actions between cruisers and torpedo boats. The result of these continued engagements was very satisfactory, as it showed a success for our fleet against a much stronger adversary."

"It is ascertained that the losses of the British, which were confirmed in part by rescued British sailors, include the Warspite, Indefatigable, Queen Mary, two armored cruisers of the Achilles type, one small cruiser, the flagship destroyers Turbulent, Nestor and Alcazar, nine or ten other destroyers, of which six were sunk by the battleship Westfalen alone."

The German losses were the Pommern, Wiesbaden and several torpedo boats.

(Note.—It is remarked that the Germans do not claim to have destroyed the Invincible, whose loss is admitted by the British admiralty. The British admiralty has not mentioned the Warspite, and it is possible that the Germans may have mistaken the Invincible for the Warspite.)

The German cruiser Frauenlob has been officially given up as lost. The following statement was made by Vice-Admiral Heibinghaus:

"The Frauenlob was seen on Wednesday night by torpedo boats and by the English submarine. She played an excellent part in the battle. The navy is in brilliant spirits."

Admiral Scheer commanded the German forces consisting of the high seas fleet with dreadnoughts, older ships of the line, battle cruisers, cruisers, light cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines.

Vice-Admiral Hipper commanded the reconnaissance forces which were engaged in battle about five o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Topped by cruisers and destroyers, six modern destroyers in the British fleet were destroyed by the Germans.

All reports acknowledge that the British sailors fought with the utmost gallantry. German seamen who took part in the battle pay high compliments to the courage and tenacity of their adversaries.

Five German torpedo boats failed to return, but the greater part of their crews were rescued.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions, naval airships and aeroplanes materially contributed to the success of the Germans.

WARD WORKING FOR GIRL'S FREEDOM

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 3.—Reports have been published in New York and other papers to the effect that Miss Mary Silliman, daughter of the late Rev. George D. Silliman, who at one time was the rector of Grace Episcopal Church at Middletown, N. Y., had been given her freedom by the German authorities and was now on her way to the United States by way of Holland.

Upon being interviewed this morning by the Washington correspondent of The Freeman, the state department at Washington, which has had charge of the case, stated that report of Miss Silliman's release as the department had received no notice of it whatever and at that moment was awaiting a cablegram from Ambassador Gerard in respect to Miss Silliman's case.

A short time ago the Rev. William W. Silliman of Greenville, N. Y., wrote a letter to Congressman Charles B. Ward telling him of the plight of his sister, Mary Silliman, who when last heard from had been taken into custody by German authorities at Warmundene, Germany.

The congressman immediately took up the case with the state department which directed the American Embassy at Berlin to investigate and report. As matters were not moving as quickly as Mr. Ward desired, he requested the department to immediately send a cablegram to Ambassador Gerard asking that everything be done to ascertain the reason for Miss Silliman's detention and to secure her release.

The cablegram was immediately sent; that was on May 19. The state department gives assurance that the American Embassy at Berlin is doing everything possible in the matter. The directions to Ambassador Gerard called for an immediate answer by cablegram when there was any definite information available regarding Miss Silliman's case. The fact that the state department at Washington has not yet received a reply from the ambassador would seem to indicate that the story of Miss Silliman's release may be unfounded.

Miss Silliman was a teacher in the American School for Girls at Constantinople and was traveling through Germany at the time of her detention. It is stated, by the latter, that the cause of her detention was the fact that a code book of messages was found in her trunk when it was examined by German officials and that Miss Silliman's only account for it being there was that it must have been placed there by a reverend student at the school. The state department is expecting at any moment cablegram information from the American Embassy.

MAY SUMMON COLONEL IN EFFORT AT STAMPEDE

Whirlwind Assault on Coliseum Trenches is Planned by Progressives—Old Game Played With Favorite Sons Who Are Setting Fast Before Demand for Hughes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 3.—A whirlwind "eleventh hour" fight for Theodore Roosevelt, including if necessary, a hurried visit to Chicago to personally explain his views in an effort to force his nomination by the Republican national convention, is planned by the Roosevelt men now in Chicago. These men believe that the rank and file of the delegates to the convention are willing to be impressed. And to impress them, reinforcements from the big business interests of the east have been sent for. Even the colonel will be available although his personal representative, George W. Perkins, said today, that there was as yet no real reason why he should come to Chicago and that no plans for his coming had been discussed yet.

While the Roosevelt men are getting ready for the assault upon the trenches of the delegates, the Old Guard leaders are quietly counting noses. They are determined to prevent the nomination of Roosevelt at any cost and are prepared at the last moment to swing to Hughes if he is the only man who can head off the first citizen of Oyster Bay. But before that action is taken they will carefully go over the situation and will try to determine whether they can retain control of the convention.

At present that control is certain. The delegates and the uninvited delegates who are responsive to the voice of their state national committeemen. But when the question of trading and uniting upon a single candidate is mentioned, many of the leaders fear that the bulk of the delegates cannot be delivered.

The existing situation here will remain unchanged until tomorrow night. The leaders on the ground continue to amplify and add to their claims but they are powerless to change the situation until the delegates arrive. A large portion of the men who will express the sentiment of the country are enroute and the special trains are scheduled to begin arriving Sunday morning.

Roosevelt "for" Them All.

There have been several conferences between the managers for the avowed candidates and the Progressive leaders to date, but not a single direct offer of a bargain has been made. Whether a real effort will be made to do business before the conventions actually meet will depend on circumstances. The methods of the Roosevelt boosters are characteristically Roosevelt. Each manager is assured of the fact that the colonel and the real issues of the campaign are so closely united that he cannot retire in favor of that particular aspirant. And despite the fact these managers include in their ranks some of the most experienced men in the country, they have fallen for the salve.

For a while yesterday Weeks men were insistent that they would get the colonel's support when he realized that he could not be nominated and it was not until this claim collided with a similar one on behalf of Charles W. Fairbanks that the leaders began to get wise that they had fallen for "old stuff."

Bad Blood is Wiped Out.

But the fact that this was part of a plan of campaign did not cause unprejudiced outsiders to lose sight of the fact that the bad blood and bitter animosities of four years ago have been wiped out. While Progressive leaders are particularly insistent that Col. Roosevelt has made the issues with which President Wilson can be defeated for re-election, and that the issues cannot be taken and their creator ignored, the few delegates on the ground feel confident that if Roosevelt finally is turned down by the Republicans the Progressive convention will be found willing to accept the Republican candidate. Among the men who believe this will take place is Walter C. Brown of Ohio, who already is on record as saying that if they have to do so the Progressives will accept Justice Hughes.

The Hughes movement was at a standstill today, but it will be rejuvenated tomorrow with the arrival of Governor Charles S. Whitman and the New York delegation. Whitman is expected to issue a statement soon after his arrival showing why Justice Hughes should be named and also insisting that he will accept the nomination.

Every Little Bit Helps.

Efforts of the "favorite son" and Roosevelt boosters to eliminate Hughes from the race on the declaration by him, through his secretary, that neither Frank Hitchcock nor anyone else was authorized to represent him in Chicago helped instead of hurt the Hughes movement.

Hitchcock referred to it as confirming his own statements, while the other Hughes leaders showed that there was nothing in the statement which had not been said for the justice several times recently and then used it to prove their contention that Hughes will accept the nomination. Had he intended to eliminate himself, they pointed out, he would have accompanied his statement with a demand on Governor Whitman that the latter do not present his name to the convention. No such demand has been made and the Whitman nominating speech, to be made as soon as Alabama gives way to New York, is in the pocket of William Orr, secretary to Whitman, who is on the ground here.

Assurance From Whitman.

It is understood Governor Whitman will assure all of the delegates when he reaches here that Hughes will accept the nomination if tendered and will explain that any public expression dealing with his candidacy would be hurtful and need not be expected.

The Weeks supporters were increased today with the arrival from the east of a small band of delegates. They flocked to the headquarters of their candidate and were immediately assigned to go out and whoop things up for the senator. All suggestions that Weeks eliminate himself as a candidate prior to the convention have definitely been rejected. There were indications today that Weeks would probably be among the leaders on the first ballot. But even in the Weeks camp there is a strong belief that this strength will not long be maintained.

The backers of Senator Sherman of Illinois also were insistent in their claims today. His campaign manager Walter A. Rosenfield, strongly denied the claims that the candidacy had been conducted with regard to state political considerations rather than to national. Promises of support and money to defray campaign expenses were coming in by every mail, he said, and they had promises of support from delegates which, when made known will prove surprising. In this connection the Sherman men are making every possible use of the popularity of Representative William B. McKinley who is keeping the Sherman name to the front. McKinley, through his friends, is calling attention that eight years ago he put "Sunny Jim" Sherman of Utica, N. Y., across for vice-president; that four years ago he was at all times predicting the nomination of Taft. This proves, they claim, that Sherman of Illinois has a chance with the McKinley backing.

Burton Advocates Active.

The advocates of the nomination of Theodore Burton of Ohio were making the most of his endorsement by Union labor leaders. The Burton boom is being carefully managed. No extravagant claims are being made and no personalities are being indulged in. The Burton people will make their big effort just before the convention meets and are devoting all their energies at present to have the former senator made the second choice of the other instructed delegates.

There are a few Root buttons in sight but the general impression in the hotel corridors is that the Root movement is doomed to collapse before nominations are called for.

No Interest in Contest.

While the campaign managers continued with their work of creating sentiment the national committee, in its headquarters in the convention building, continued its work of listening to the contests. Because these are admittedly unimportant and will have little effect upon the fortunes of any of the candidates, little attention was paid to the committee's sessions. It was expected that the contests would be out of the way by Monday night and then the last preliminary to the actual start of the convention will be out of the way.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WATER BOARD

All Officers Re-elected—No Increase in Salaries—Meeting Date Changed—Extension Work to be Started—To Consult Corporation Counsel Regarding Compensation Law.

President John Hauck of the water board was re-elected president of the board and Major George Chandler was re-elected secretary at the annual meeting held at the city hall on Friday afternoon. The board also re-elected all of its paid officials as follows: Superintendent, John H. Harrison, salary $1,500 a year; Abel B. Abernethy, cashier and assistant secretary, salary $1,300 a year; E. Leroy Cashin, clerk, salary $900 a year; Inspectors, Edgar Holstein and William J. O'Neil, salary $900 a year each; chemist, James Caird, salary $1,200 a year. There was no increase in the amount of salaries.

On motion of Commissioner Canfield it was decided to change the day of meeting of the board from the first Friday of the month to the first Thursday.

A communication was received from Dwight T. McEntee calling attention to the new compensation law that requires a city to insure its employees. This law went into effect the first of June and Mr. McEntee wrote he would be pleased to take up the matter with the board with the idea of issuing a policy on the board's employees. It was decided to refer the matter of insurance to the corporation counsel and President Hauck was authorized to look after the matter.

Superintendent Harrison was authorized to start the proposed extension work on Cornell street, Lincoln street and the Boulevard as soon as possible. This work was all laid out last year.

On motion of Commissioner Canfield the superintendent was authorized to tear down a chicken coop too near the lake at the water shed and also to make several minor improvements to the property.

Bills and claims against the board amounting to $394.68 were audited and ordered paid.

The board then adjourned.

WAYS WITH PARSNIPS.

This delicious vegetable should be found often on our tables during the spring months. To boil them and serve plain put a pork shank to cook in boiling water, let simmer for an hour or two, and two hours before dinner add the well-washed parsnips, cooking gently to keep them whole. Season and serve with the pork.

Parsnip Chips With Sausage.—Wash and scrape parsnips and cut in pieces a fourth of an inch thick; put to boil in just enough water to cook soft without burning. Cook a half pound of sausage cakes in a frying pan, take out the meat, pour off some of the fat and fry the chips until a golden brown on both sides. Serve as a garnish to the sausage with a little green of either parsley or cress.

Pot Roast.—Prepare a pot roast in the usual way and cook some parsnips in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain the parsnips and put them into the kettle after the meat has been removed; cook until well seasoned, add flour to the sauce and serve meat, parsnips and gravy all on one platter.

Casserole Parsnips.—Cut the peeled parsnips in thick slices and parboil in salted water for 20 minutes. Drain and put into the casserole with butter and pepper, or a few slices of bacon may be used instead of butter, or beef drippings may be used. Bake two hours, adding a little water until they are very tender.

Browned Parsnips.—Cut well-cleaned parsnips lengthwise and cook until tender in boiling, salted water. When tender, brown in fresh pork drippings or in suet fat. Serve the parsnips, with a sauce made with flour and cream in the fat left from frying.

Parsnips With Drawn Butter Sauce.—Wash and scrape parsnips and cut in pieces or in strips; cook until soft, then serve with drawn butter sauce—melt a third of a cupful of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, salt and pepper to season and a cupful and a half of boiling water. Serve hot.

MILTON.

Milton, June 3.—Bishop Luther B. Wilson, D. D., L. L. D., resident bishop of the M. E. Church, New York city, will speak in the M. E. Church on Wednesday, June 7, at 2:30 o'clock. All are most cordially invited and urged to come and hear Bishop Wilson.

Children's Day will be observed by the M. E. Sunday school on June 11. In the morning, baptism of infants and sermon to children. In the evening, Children's Day exercises will be given by the school.

The Newburgh district spring conference will be held in St. John's Church Tuesday, June 6, at 1:30. Bishop Wilson will speak in the evening and with a ministerial party will visit six neighboring churches on Wednesday. Milton is one of the six. He will be at the M. E. Church at 2:30. Come out and greet the bishop with a full church.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Is it possible to ascertain whether a piece of steel is crystallized without rendering the part useless for the purpose for which it is designed? Is it possible to tell by filing whether a piece of steel is crystallized or not?

An expert metallurgist could tell the condition of a part by examining a filed or brightened spot with a microscope. This would not make the part useless.

My 1912 car is not running satisfactorily. The engine does not pick up and when running slowly and when giving more gas starts pounding very hard. Even retarding and advancing the spark does not help much. At a fifteen mile speed, however, the engine runs freely and takes the gas without pounding. Can you tell me what causes this? I have had the motor overhauled and keep it well oiled.

Probably the first thing about your engine is that it is getting old, and you cannot expect it to have the performance of a new motor. Your trouble would readily be chargeable to excessive carbonization were it not that you have recently had the motor thoroughly overhauled. That source of trouble being eliminated, the next thing is undoubtedly the ignition or the carburetion. Probably your timing is too advanced, preventing firing at the proper time when the engine is running slowly.

How are piston rings held while lapped in the cylinders? Are they left on the piston?

In lapping in the rings they are put on the pistons in the regular way and worked in with the rest of the motor.

Can you tell me how an amateur can time valves by the flywheel on an ordinary car?

In general you will find the flywheel of a motor marked for the proper timing so that you will not have to do anything further than to see that the marks register with the indicator at the proper time. In case the flywheel is not marked, however, the method of procedure is as follows:

Bring the piston of No. 1 cylinder to upper dead center. On the frame of the motor, close to the flywheel, make a mark and then on the flywheel directly opposite this mark make another mark so that the two register when the piston of No. 1 cylinder is on upper dead center. If there is no portion of the engine frame sufficiently close to the flywheel for the two marks to register it will be necessary to fasten to the engine some sort of an indicating mark, such as a piece of sheet metal, which extends close to the flywheel. The marks can then be made on this indicator. It is very often possible to slip a piece of sheet metal bent in a Z shape between the two halves of the crank case with a hole so arranged that one of the bolts passes through the sheet of metal and holds it solidly. With the piston of No. 1 cylinder on upper dead center, which can be determined by placing a stick of wood on the top of the piston and moving the crank upward until the stick is at its highest point or by some other means, which will vary with the make of engine, the valves are allowed to both be closed resting against their seats. The intake valve is then arranged to open at anywhere between dead center and ten degrees past. This is determined on the flywheel by passing a tape around the circumference, starting with the mark for upper dead center of No. 1 cylinder and going entirely around and then laying off the length of the tape in 360 equal parts, each of which, when laid around the flywheel, will represent a degree. The timing gears are then meshed so that the intake starts to open a few degrees past top center.

The exact number of degrees will be determined by the arrangement of the gear teeth, but it must be kept close to the top center. The time of closing of the intake will be determined by the cam and need not trouble you. When you have the mark on the flywheel for the point at which the intake starts to open for a No. 1 cylinder you should mark it I. O. No. 1. The point of exhaust opening is then determined in about the same manner, the opening of the exhaust starting between thirty-five and forty degrees before the lower center on the down stroke, succeeding the intake stroke, which, of course, is a down stroke. With the cams determined by the fact that the cam shaft is in your possession, only the openings of the valves need be determined.

After you have marked on the flywheel E. O. No. 1, signifying the exhaust opens for No. 1 cylinder, you should go to the next cylinder which comes into operation and mark the flywheel. After having determined the proper firing position for the No. 1 cylinder, the other cylinders will take care of themselves, since the cam shaft and crank shaft have been designed to act in unison.

In an eight and twelve cylinder motor how many power strokes are there to one revolution of the crank shaft?

Four power strokes to a revolution in an eight, and six power strokes to a revolution in a twelve.

Murderous.
Mrs. Newmarrie (sorrowfully, after departure of her husband's rich uncle)—"It's too bad the dinner was a failure, dear." Mr. Newmarrie—"But it wasn't a failure, darling. It took at least a year from uncle's life."

Kindly advise me how I can eliminate a grinding noise occurring in the differential of my car, and how can I adjust this so that I will not have to buy new gears?

The grinding noise you speak of may be due to foreign matter which has accumulated in the differential gear housing. Before doing anything else it would be well to flush this out with kerosene. The differential can then be packed with heavy grease, and unless the noise is due to considerable wear it should not bother you. The probabilities are that the wear occurs between the driving pinion and the crown gear. Any adjustments at this point should be made by a repair man.

A salesman for one of the standard cars told me that oxygen acetylene flame, as used in the decarbonizing method today, deposited an ash during the combustion and if any of this ash was left in the cylinder it would score the walls and injure bearings, etc. He also said that enough grit was deposited in such combustion that if mixed with oil it could be used as a grinding compound for grinding in the valves. Can you tell me if this is true?

Opinions differ somewhat as to the advisability of oxygen decarbonizers, whether it be in motors having aluminum pistons or those having steel or cast iron pistons.

It is not believed that the oxygen flame, or the oxygen acetylene flame, deposits an ash which would be harmful. However, in some instances it has been found that there is a gritty deposit left after the removal of carbon by this process, but it is believed to be a deposit of silicates from the fine sand and dirt which may be drawn into the cylinder with the air through the carburetor. Some forms of this might be sufficiently hard to give trouble if it were not thoroughly washed out. Most of this is carried out with the exhaust after carbon removal, however. Analysis has shown that fully 45 per cent of so called carbon deposit is road dirt.

Can you give me a simple way to trace the mis in a six cylinder engine? When only one cylinder is missing I find it difficult to locate it.

With the motor running, open one compression cock at a time and hold a match so that if that particular cylinder is firing the match will be lighted. The missing cylinder will not ignite the match.

Another simple way is to short circuit the plugs in succession. If you short circuit a working cylinder it will affect the speed and sound of the motor. The missing cylinder will be located when the short circuiting has no effect.

What are helical gears?

Helical gears often are called spiral gears, and there is no closely drawn distinction between such forms of gears and worm gearing. The teeth are somewhat twisted and they may have any desired form so long as the mating teeth correspond. If you took a number of very thin spur gears that are placed together side by side and then shift them slightly about their common center so that the teeth do not line, you would have an elementary helical gear. If you ran such a combination of thin gears with another set of thin gears whose teeth were similarly out of line you would have a train of gears in mesh all the time. Now, suppose we were to consider all of the teeth of these very thin gears to blend into one another without the steps between them. They would form twisted teeth, the contact surfaces of which teeth would be smooth and have a certain spiral curve.

Is it correct that the front wheels of a car should be nearer together than the rear?

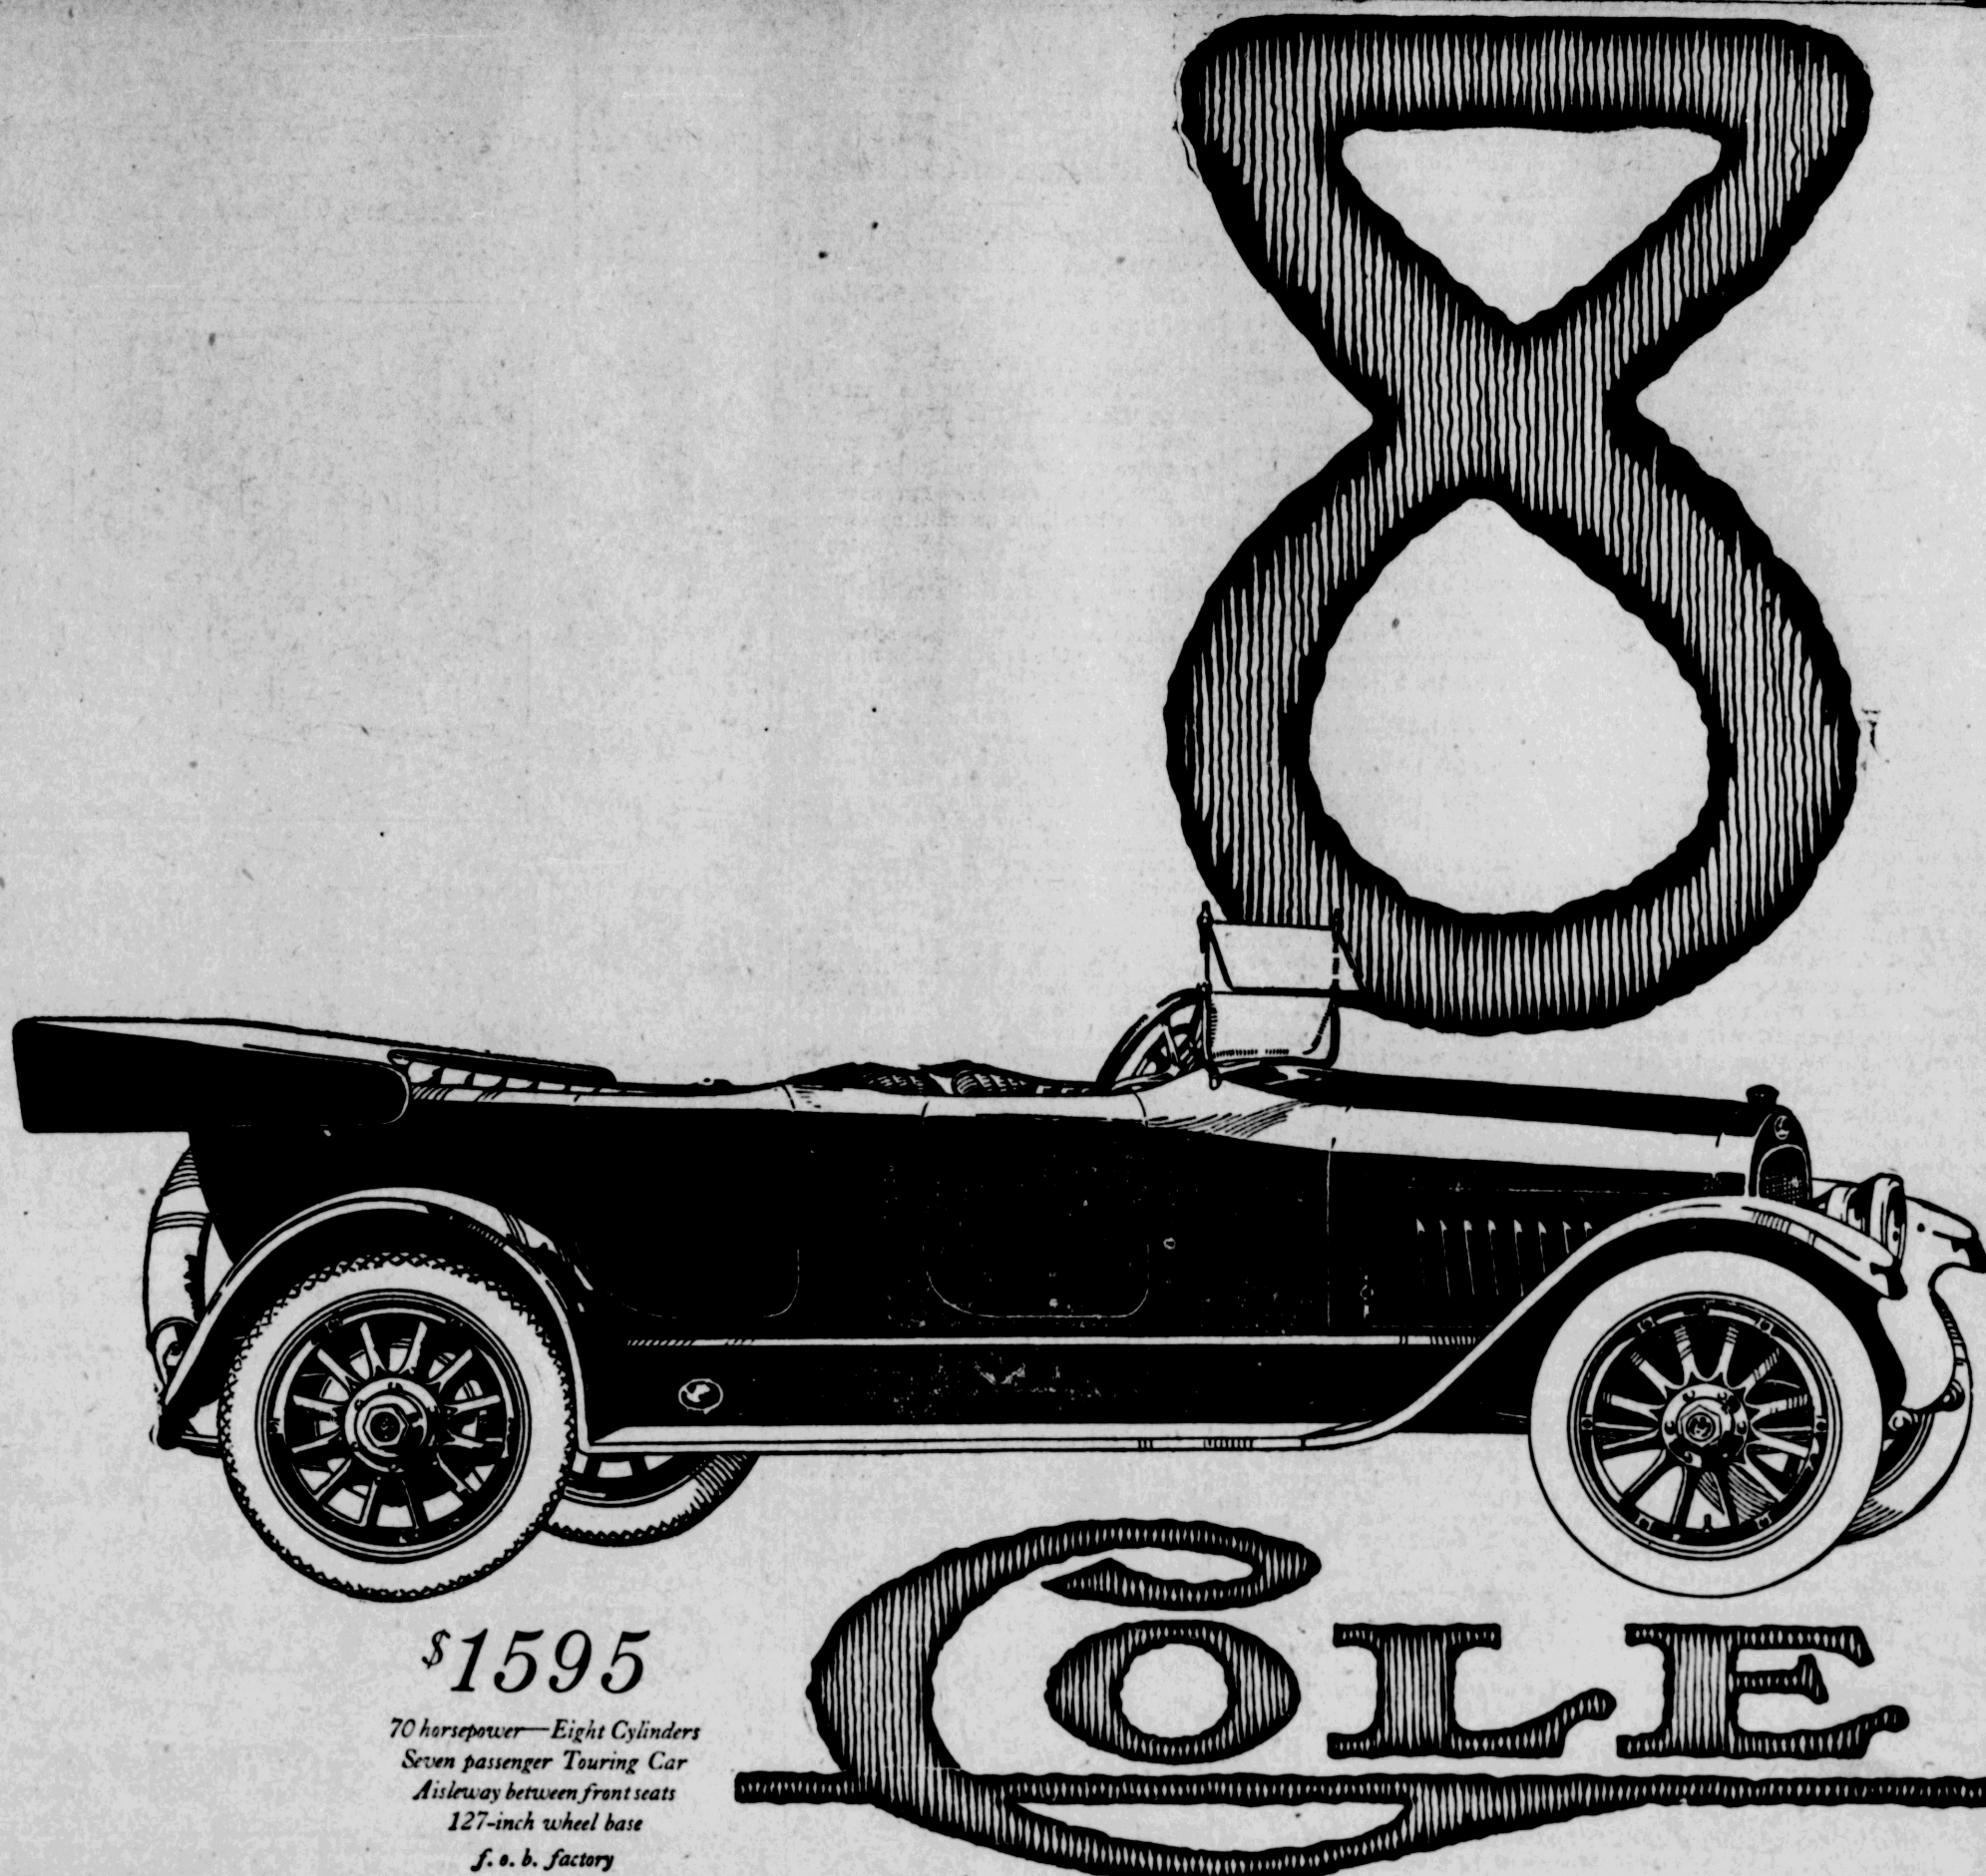

Yes. The rims of the front pair of wheels should be about one-fourth to three-eighths of an inch nearer together in front than in the rear. That practice is employed by most car makers and is called forethrust, the idea being to have the wheels parallel when car is running, as it is conceded that when car is being driven forward there will be enough give in the tie rod and steering knuckles to allow the wheels to sag back a little.

What would cause a motor to overheat abnormally with plenty of oil and everything apparently in good condition?

Overheating might be the result of improper ignition timing. If your spark occurs late, due to incorrect setting of the timer, the engine would overheat. Then, too, it might be due to the use of a cylinder oil not adaptable to the engine, or there might be something the matter with the cooling system. Sometimes the rubber piping gets in bad condition, disintegrating and partially or wholly stopping the water circulation. It is best to first have the ignition properly set by an experienced man, and then inspect the water system. Possibly there is a portion of the radiator that is stopped up, preventing the water from circulating through its entire cooling surface as it should.

The Reason and Reward of Success

Success is measured solely by sales. Automobile sales are the direct result of performance.

Therefore the consistent, insistent and increasing demand for the famous Cole Eight must be directly credited to its unapproachable performance.

There now seems to be little chance of our ever catching up with immediate orders.

From a standing start to sixty miles an hour, in less time than you can say it; for swiftness without noise, rattle or vibration; for soft, smooth and perfectly balanced operation; for real economy; for the last word in comfort and smartness—get a Cole Eight.

It's the car of today—and the future. It's the automobile you want. Order yours now. /

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, June 3.—The Bible class which has been recently re-organized in connection with the Reformed Church will meet after the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening.

The subject for the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening was "Home Missions Are Blessing the World." Reference is found in Ezekiel 47:1-12.

W. H. Benjamin of Yonkers, who was in Kingston on business, spent some time the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Snyder.

Some from this place attended the horse races held at the Ellenville Driving Park on Tuesday.

The High Falls public school was closed on Tuesday for Decoration Day.

Miss Edna Freer, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Richard Purvis, of Kingston, came home on Thursday.

Miss Hattie Gheer of New York city is home on a vacation.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Festus Yeaple on Thursday afternoon. There were twenty-two present. All spent a most enjoyable afternoon. Refreshments were served, consisting of cakes and tea. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Philletus Kortright.

Mrs. Hutchins and daughter, Dorothy Hutchins, visited town on Thursday.

Claude Shaw of Walden and his daughter, Miss Frances Shaw, motored through this place on Tuesday. They made several calls in the village. Miss Shaw is doing missionary work at the Crow Indian Mission, Wyoila, Montana.

The Batemans, who have been spending the winter in New York city, expect to come back to their home here the coming week.

Cyrus McKee has left the employment of Jacob Snyder and is going to farm for Marvin Van Wageningen. Mr. and Mrs. McKee will move down on the farm next week.

Mrs. John Delamater and her cousin, Mr. Melvin, of Poughkeepsie, spent Decoration Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Delamater.

The Rev. George Dangremond was out making calls on Wednesday afternoon of this week.

Communion service will be observed in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning.

June, the first summer month is with us once more. All nature has awakened in its beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Duym were out driving on Friday afternoon. Henry Williams is working for Preston Church.

Spencer's School Notes.

Below are the names of several graduates and students of Spencer's Business School, corner of Wall and John streets, who have accepted good business positions within the past few days:

Miss Della Monroe, of the combined course, has secured a permanent position as assistant cashier with A. D. Rose, groceries and meats, 73 Franklin street.

Preston DuBois, an experienced stenographer and bookkeeper, has obtained a good paying position with the National Biscuit Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Miss Pearl Blackwell has secured a position as stenographer in the Hotel Lafayette, Ashbury Park, N. J.

Miss Mildred Raiche, a graduate of the stenographic department, has secured a permanent position with I. O. Feldstein, tailor, 730 Broadway.

Misses Urell, Myers and Mellus recently passed their final examinations.

necessary for proficiency as stenographers and typists.

Calls for graduates from the leading commercial houses have been the largest in the school's history, several positions out of the city remaining unfilled. Young people who wish to prepare for professional employment should begin their studies without any undue loss of time. The summer school offers excellent opportunities for high school students and others.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, June 3.—A great many people from this place spent Decoration Day in Kingston.

Augustus Cole spent a few days at his home here the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Webb and little daughter and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Webb of Rutherford, N. J., came up with their auto on Saturday and visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wageningen, returning home Tuesday.

The supper and social held by the trustees of the chapel on Wednesday evening was well attended.

Rumor says that wedding bells will ring in our midst during the coming week.

Herman Bunje and Mrs. Charles Bunje have gone to Jersey to attend the funeral of a relative.

Miss Harriet Eckert spent this week with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Van Aken, at Kingston.

Alton Cole has returned to his home at Ulster Park having been the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Coultan, while his parents were visiting relatives and friends in Brooklyn and vicinity.

Miss Frances Fammier spent the week end with her parents and had as her guest Miss Rachel Hoffman of Kingston.

Miss Bush and some of the pupils expect to spend Saturday at New Paltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kabeilus of Brooklyn spent Decoration Day with Mr. and Mrs. E. Schnering, Mr.

Kabeilus returning home the same day.

Bohrend Bunje and Raymond Coultan attended the Kingston-Troy baseball game on Tuesday afternoon.

A number of young people from this place attended the dance at Esopus on Monday evening.

A Stream of Water.

A high pressure jet of water will bowl over a man as easily as if he were a box of matches and leave him half stunned. It will even turn a bullet from its path. Experiments have shown that a jet of water can be produced at such a high pressure that it becomes practically a bar of iron. Swords have been blunted in attempting to cut through these extra high pressure jets. Some years ago an armed thief attempted to hold up a high official of the Bank of England in his private office. The official managed to get out of the room unharmed and locked the door. A resourceful attendant brought the fire hose. He opened the door sufficiently to insert the nozzle. In a few minutes the would be thief was picked up senseless.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Family Affair.

It was at the information bureau—the place set apart for inquiries about wounded men in the various hospitals. In flattered a particularly pretty girl and addressed the rather severe looking lady in charge.

"I wish," she said, "to see Lieutenant Ernst Wagner. In what hospital is he?"

"Lieutenant Wagner can receive visits only from his relatives."

"I am his cousin."

"And I am his mother."—New York Post.

Human Bodies.

Two-thirds water and one-third solids are practically the composition of the human body.

THE CULPRIT CAME BACK.

Because "Big Sim" Was Only a Sheriff and Not a Surveyor.

A Salt Lake City man tells this story of one "Big Sim," a deputy sheriff of Eureka, from whom no criminal could get away by the cross country method. Sim was familiar with every foot of ground in eastern Nevada and could outrun a coyote.

As deputy sheriff he engaged in several long chases, always with success. His capture of a horse thief known as "Spanish Abe" was the toast of Eureka for a long time.

This Spanish Abe was a "bad actor," who made it his business to appropriate stray cattle and the blooded mares of the neighborhood. With a companion he was finally rounded up and incarcerated in the Eureka jail. The next night, however, the criminals forced the window of their cell and took to the brush, mounted on the fleetest animals they could steal.

Big Sim, hours later, hit the trail in pursuit. Spanish Abe turned toward Utah and was changing horses along the road. Big Sim, renewing his mount likewise and cutting across country, gained on the fugitives in the desert.

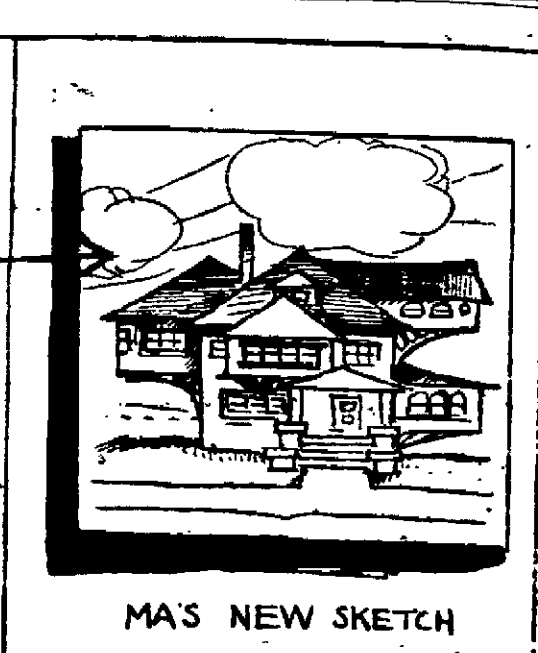

Pursued and pursued had been riding continuously, and the horses were giving way under the strain. But Big Sim kept on, and it is said he was well into Utah when he brought Spanish Abe and his companion upon a level with his gun and clapped on the handcuffs.

"You have no right to take us, Sim," the Mexican whined. "We are in Utah."

"Rats!" Big Sim replied. "I ain't no surveyor. Come on."—Case and Comment.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WATER BOARD

All Officers Re-elected—No Increase in Salaries—Meeting Date Changed—Extension Work to be Started—To Consult Corporation Counsel Regarding Compensation Law.

President John Hauck of the water board was re-elected president of the board and Major George Chandler was re-elected secretary at the annual meeting held at the city hall on Friday afternoon. The board also re-elected all of its paid officials as follows: Superintendent, John H. Harrison, salary $1,500 a year; Abel B. Abernethy, cashier and assistant secretary, salary $1,300 a year; E. Leroy Cashin, clerk, salary $900 a year; inspectors, Edgar Holstein and William J. O'Neil, salary $900 a year each; chemist, James Caird, salary $1,200 a year. There was no increase in the amount of salaries.

On motion of Commissioner Canfield it was decided to change the day of meeting of the board from the first Friday of the month to the first Thursday.

A communication was received from Dwight T. McEntee calling attention to the new compensation law that requires a city to insure its employees. This law went into effect the first of June and Mr. McEntee wrote he would be pleased to take up the matter with the board with the idea of issuing a policy on the board's employees. It was decided to refer the matter of insurance to the corporation counsel and President Hauck was authorized to look after the matter.

Superintendent Harrison was authorized to start the proposed extension work on Cornell street, Lincoln street and the Boulevard as soon as possible. This work was all laid out last year.

On motion of Commissioner Canfield the superintendent was authorized to tear down a chicken coop too near the lake at the water shed and also to make several minor improvements to the property.

Bills and claims against the board amounting to $394.68 were audited and ordered paid.

The board then adjourned.

WAYS WITH PARSNIPS.

This delicious vegetable should be found often on our tables during the spring months. To boil them and serve plain put a pork shank to cook in boiling water, let simmer for an hour or two, and two hours before dinner add the well-washed parsnips, cooking gently to keep them whole. Season and serve with the pork.

Parsnip Chips With Sausage.—Wash and scrape parsnips and cut in pieces a fourth of an inch thick; put to boil in just enough water to cook soft without burning. Cook a half pound of sausage cakes in a frying pan, take out the meat, pour off some of the fat and try the chips until a golden brown on both sides. Serve as a garnish to the sausage with a little green of either parsley or cress.

Pot Roast.—Prepare a pot roast in the usual way and cook some parsnips in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain the parsnips and put them into the kettle after the meat has been removed; cook until well seasoned, add flour to the sauce and serve meat, parsnips and gravy all on one platter.

Casserole Parsnips.—Cut the peeled parsnips in thick slices and parboil in salted water for 20 minutes. Drain and put into the casserole with butter and pepper, or a few slices of bacon may be used instead of butter, or beef drippings may be used. Bake two hours, adding a little water until they are very tender.

Browned Parsnips.—Cut well-cleaned parsnips lengthwise and cook until tender in boiling, salted water. When tender, brown in fresh pork drippings or in suet fat. Serve the parsnips, with a sauce made with flour and cream in the fat left from frying.

Parsnips With Drawn Butter Sauce.—Wash and scrape parsnips and cut in pieces or in strips; cook until soft, then serve with drawn butter sauce—melt a third of a cupful of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, salt and pepper to season and a cupful and a half of boiling water. Serve hot.

MILTON.

Milton, June 3.—Bishop Luther B. Wilson, D. D., L. L. D., resident bishop of the M. E. Church, New York city, will speak in the M. E. Church on Wednesday, June 7, at 2:30 o'clock. All are most cordially invited and urged to come and hear Bishop Wilson.

Children's Day will be observed by the M. E. Sunday school on June 11. In the morning, baptism of infants and sermon to children. In the evening, Children's Day exercises will be given by the school. The Newburgh district spring conference will be held in St. John's Church Tuesday, June 6, at 1:30. Bishop Wilson will speak in the evening and with a ministerial party will visit six neighboring churches on Wednesday. Milton is one of the six. He will be at the M. E. Church at 2:30. Come out and greet the bishop with a full church.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 3, 1916.

Disaster has perched upon British arms in the first great naval clash of the war where the odds were anywhere near equal between the opposing squadrons. Even the equanimity of the average Britisher, born of deep-seated confidence in the invulnerability of that magnificent navy, must be shaken by this encounter off the Skager Rack. The state of the official mind in London was indicated in the first outspoken denial of any naval engagement or losses which greeted the message from Berlin via the Saybrook wireless station. Then came a half-hearted admission of some of the facts followed by the humiliating confirmation of the German report in its essential details. The victory is another tribute to the sheer audacity of the Germans who have again and again carried the battle to their enemies at sea as well as on land. It is far more pleasant to chronicle such a daring enterprise rather than to report more "frightfulness" applied to merchantmen. Why the British have not taken a leaf from the German book and essayed some spectacular assault upon the forces within the vicinity of the Kiel canal is a mystery. Such action, even though foolhardy, might prove of value for home consumption, to say nothing of real advantage that might accrue in the event of a successful surprise. The Jutland encounter was a real sea battle with the honors falling to German gunners in the ratio of ten to three, the numbers of war vessels put out of commission on each side. Another assault of this nature and the Allies will be asking about the abilities of their Anglican associates in the line of sea-fighting outside of history books.

Forty-six days at sea without touching land is the latest exploit of a submarine, and it should cause Americans to consider carefully the possibilities of attack against our shipping and our seacoast cities in the event of war between the United States and a European power. The trip was made by a British undersea boat, which was compelled to remain submerged for forty out of the first forty-eight hours. Nothing is more conducive to a contented state of mind than a feeling of security, but security is not obtained either by platitudinous appeals for peace or an ostrich-like attitude. For some years we have listened to oratory whose purport was that the brotherhood of man was spreading so fast that within a brief period all nations would disarm and the money spent in armaments would be turned into the channels of art, science and trade. Arbitration was to take the place of armed force in all international disputes, and the dove of peace hovered so near that it was almost possible to follow the childish amusement of trying to put salt on her tail. Even while orators were prevailing on people to adopt this view, Mexico was murdering American travelers and residents, but still the American people hesitated to believe that conditions were serious. Nearly two years have elapsed since the European conflict began, and it shows no signs of slackening, while in Mexico our army is doing nothing although it set out to "get Villa alive or dead." The man who is armed and prepared for a foe is better able to meet the emergency if the foe appears than the man who owns neither gun, ammunition nor locks to his doors. It is well enough to pray for peace, but it is a good maxim to keep the powder dry, as a famous Revolutionary soldier advised. Better yet, it is a good plan to have a supply of powder and also a gun.

Business never suffers for lack of some form of activity which will furnish business for the legal profession. The day of what were known as "fine fence" cases almost faded from the courts a number of years ago. "Hoss" cases are a rarity. Assault and slander still maintain a respectable standing. The insurance law is quite well settled, although new questions occur not infrequently over the rights of third parties. The day of negligence cases practically disappeared with the passage of workmen's compensation acts, but the increasing automobile traffic is furnishing a new class of cases, principally for personal injuries, to take their place. The European war is furnishing still another new class of cases, involving war contracts. These cases are for commissions, either earned or merely promised; shares in profits and suits resulting from misunderstandings or disagreements in regard to financing the contracts which in most cases have proved profitable beyond expectation. All these will keep the courts busy for some time, and when business in that line begins to slacken there will be something new. Old and well tried principles are involved in all of these cases, but disputes arise over the application of the principles to certain facts and the courts must continue to remain the arbiters between litigants. The legal profession may have its ups and downs, its busy seasons and its dull days, but until men have attained a state of perfection or else adopt pacifism in their ordinary affairs of life there will always be opportunity for the lawyer, and no immediate apprehension need be felt that the profession will die and become forgotten.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Ranall—"After twenty-five years of married life she loves her husband as much as ever." Rogers—"Yes, and she annoys him in other ways, too."—Life.

"Do you think with your native American independence you would feel unnerved in the presence of a king?" "Not if I held an ace."—Baltimore American.

"What is your idea of a political leader?" "One who is able to perceive the way the crowd is going, and follows with loud whoops in that direction."—Judge.

Novelist—"Those confounded critics roasted my new novel unmercifully." Friend—"Well, you have your revenge—they had to read the book, didn't they?"—Boston Transcript.

"Is your new motor car a good hill-climber?" "Fine," replied Mr. Churgin. "I only wish it would draw the line at hills. Sometimes it wants to try a treebox or a telegraph pole."—Washington Star.

"Ah! A package of old love letters, tied round with a faded pink ribbon. I could shed tears at the sight of them." "Piffle! For true pathos nothing surpasses a bundle of cancelled checks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Angelic Treatment.

"The late John Townsend Trowbridge, author of 'Darius Green and His Flying Machine,' had a quaint way of expressing himself," said a New York editor.

"A girl asked Mr. Trowbridge's advice one day about marrying an impecunious young poet."

"How much does he make?" Mr. Trowbridge asked.

"Oh," said the girl, "he only makes about $6 a week. He's no pay-your-own-way poet. But," she added, "he says he'll treat me like an angel."

"Humph," said Mr. Trowbridge, "I suppose so. Nothing to eat and less to wear."—New York Times.

The Best Thing.

Charles W. Mortimer, British consul at Los Angeles, said at a dinner:

"To improve one's carriage, to acquire a manly look, there is nothing like doing one's duty by one's country."

"A young Englishman asked his doctor the other day:

"Doctor, what is the best thing to expand the chest?"

"War medals," the doctor answered."—Los Angeles Times.

An Appropriate Alteration.

In his later years Frederick William, King of Prussia, was sorely afflicted with gout. The twinges of pain aggravated his naturally irascible temper. During the attacks he was accustomed to divert his mind by painting. His models were always soldiers. In this relation the Germans tell a story.

One day he kept a tall grenadier posing for a long time. At length the picture was finished. The king turned to the man, and in a terrible voice asked:

"What do you think of that?"

"The cheeks are redder than mine," was the hesitating response.

"I'll soon fix that!" roared the old king.

He seized his brush and painted both cheeks of the terrified grenadier a brilliant red.—New York Press.

Fire Prevention.

On fire prevention day School No. 1 observed it in the usual way. The children seemed very much interested and at the lunch hour two girls discussed it seriously.

"I heard of a way to prevent fire," one of them suggested gravely.

"What was it?"

"Well, I read it in a paper. It's a good way in the winter, but I don't think it would work in the summer. Some things are that way, you know, sort of seasonal. That doesn't make them the less valuable though."

"Of course not," encouraged her companion.

"To begin with, you are always to have a glass of water handy when fire breaks out and then—"

"Well?"

"You pour the water out the window and slide down the icicles."—The Indianapolis News.

A Wise Child.

A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl, who watched open-mouthed and open-eyed the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head, and started to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you?"

After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought out from a remote corner a peppermint.

As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?"

The little girl looked at it, then at him, and replied, "Wash it."—Boston Post.

DR. LARKIN OPENS KINGSTON OFFICE

Former Kingstonian Guest of Honor at Banquet Tendered by City Officials of Yonkers—To Make Home in This City.

Dr. John F. Larkin, who has been stationed at Yonkers for the past six years, has returned to Kingston and opened an office at No. 37 Stuyvesant street. He will make his home in Kingston hereafter. For several years he has been quarantine officer of the city of Yonkers, where a farewell banquet was given in his honor at the Park Hill Inn last Saturday night. Former Mayor Michael J. Walsh was one of the speakers and in his address stated that in going from Yonkers to be with his parents in their old age, Dr. Larkin revealed one of the characteristics which had won for him countless friends. A handsome black leather hand bag was presented to Dr. Larkin by the diners, the presentation speech being made by Public Safety Commissioner James J. Fleming. Alderman Thomas A. Brogan was the toastmaster for the occasion and besides the speakers mentioned, speeches were made by Mayor James T. Lennon, Alderman Frederick H. Stillwell, Dan C. Nolan and Dr. Larkin's brother-in-law, Andrew J. Cook, of this city, who was one of the invited guests. Dr. Larkin made a fitting response to the farewell address, all of which were highly eulogistic and bespoke the regard in which he is held in Yonkers.

Dr. Larkin was graduated from Ulster Academy in 1904, and after a course of study at Cornell was graduated from the Cornell Medical College in 1910, since which time he has been practicing at Yonkers.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Waist 1603—Skirt 1602—A Style

With Newest Lines. Comprising Ladies' Waist Pattern, 1603, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 1602.

Peacock blue serge, with red and gold embroidery would be nice for this. The waist is full at the shoulders and cinched at the waist.

A smart revers collar and tiny vest completes a charming effect. The skirt is novel and chic in its draped effect. Fawn color and blue gabardine could be combined for this model. Pompadour taffeta with matched satin facing is also nice. The sleeve in wrist length is close-fitting below the elbow. In short length it has a neat turnback cuff.

The waist pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. The skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. To make the dress will require 5 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. Linen, voile, crepe, satin, broadcloth and gingham are good for this style. The skirt measures about 3 1/2 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps by The Freeman pattern department. Be sure to state size wanted.

POMONA GRANGERS IN JUNE MEETING

Milky Way a Rocky Road to Travel
According to Testimony Offered by Producers—Grange Revival in Progress in Ulster.

The June meeting of the Ulster County Pomona Grange, held at Gardiner on Friday, was one of the best attended and most enjoyable June sessions ever held by that organization. Usually in June the members are too busy on their farms to have any time to spare on social affairs, but this year seems an exception, the attendance at the meeting being between 75 and 100 and 10 of the 13 Granges in the county being represented.

From reports received by Secretary Harold V. Story and verbal reports made at the meeting it is apparent that there is a "Grange revival" in progress in Ulster county, particularly in Stone Ridge, New Paltz and Plattekill. Stone Ridge Grange completed its new hall and will hold dedication ceremonies on Thursday afternoon of next week at 2:30 o'clock, at which time Sherman J. Lowell, Master of the State Grange, will be present and all Grangers are invited. The O. & W. trains will be met at High Falls by conveyance and visitors will be taken back to High Falls in time for the early evening trains.

In view of the fact that the Pomona Grange has not met in Stone Ridge in many years and that everybody wants to see the new hall, it was unanimously decided to hold the September meeting at that place. An interesting discussion of the state packing law and the effort made to have the legislature repeal it was led by J. A. Hepworth of Milton, a grower of prize apples and a warm advocate of the law, which has the support of the State Fruitgrowers' Association. While it was admitted that in some cases packers had been severely punished for an innocent error it was also shown that had they not procrastinated, but come at once with their explanations and excuses, they might have been treated more leniently. It was only those who had ignored notices or willfully violated the law who have been punished with what looked like undue severity.

Mr. Kraft on Milk Problem.

Overseer Henry McCormick of Plutarch presided at the morning session in the absence of W. M. John E. Kraft and at the afternoon session Mr. Kraft presided and led a discussion of milk prices that may bear fruit in the finding of a new market for Walkill Valley milk at better prices. Mr. Kraft pointed out the jokers in the contract the producers now have and showed clearly that the creameries took the lion's share of the profit from the better grades of milk.

The literary program, under charge of C. E. Davis of Lake Katrine, opened with a decidedly milky favor. Mrs. J. W. Alsford of Clintondale reading a humorous poem giving the dairyman's experience in a rather pessimistic vein, while C. B. Wright of Gardiner read a semi-humorous poem taking a highly optimistic view of the cow as a mortgage lifter. Mrs. R. K. Coward of New Paltz, who has a voice such as is not often heard outside the ranks of professional singers, gave a solo that was most heartily applauded. Harold V. Story of Ulster Park read a brief but extremely strong and well written paper on "Grange Influence," and there was singing by the entire assemblage. Mrs. M. E. Stephens of Gardiner at the organ.

Debate on School Law.

An informal debate on the proposed new township school law followed, led by C. E. Davis and participated in by a number of members, including J. C. Barnes, C. B. Wright, Dr. M. E. Stephens, J. A. Hepworth, John E. Kraft and others, during which a great deal of light was shed on the provisions of the proposed law and also upon the fads and fancies of the school system.

At the end of the debate a lady who said she was the mother of nine children and who evidently did not agree with what had been said, urged that the other side be heard. It was agreed to continue the subject at the next meeting since the Subject of Granges to discuss it thoroughly before reaching a conclusion. The State Department of Education has asked for the Grange opinion and will be in large measure governed by it in its attitude toward the bill.

After voting $25 to the Ulster County Farm Bureau and listening to a short address by County Deputy Barnes in praise of Farm Bureau efficiency the meeting adjourned.

FARMERS' CONFERENCE.

Dates for Institute to be Arranged on June 24.

On Saturday, June 24th, at 10:00 a. m., at the Court House, Kingston, N. Y., Prof. D. J. Crosby and Edward Van Alstyne will hold a conference to arrange for Farmers' Institutes and Farm Demonstration Schools for the coming winter.

If your community wants either one or the other of these meetings, it will be necessary for a representative of that community to be present at the conference, voice their request, and demand their wishes.

The most successful Farmers' Institute last winter and the winter before were those at which the ladies of the community co-operated by providing a paid dinner for those who visited the institute. Consequently, this year, any community requesting an institute and offering to provide a paid dinner, should receive more consideration than one which makes no offer.

A Farm Demonstration School, comprising five solid days of study, lectures and demonstrations, can be secured wherever 40 students will enroll and pay a tuition fee of $1.00 each. No community can have both a Farmers' Institute and a Farm Demonstration School.

If you want your community to have an institute or a school, be sure to be on hand with a delegation to show your interest.

MILKING THREE TIMES A DAY.

President Young of the Farm Bureau Says It Does.

Chester Young of Napanoch, N. Y., working on the idea that a cow ceases to secrete or accumulate milk after her udder and milk organs have been filled to a certain capacity, and that if the cow is given relief by taking the milk away from her, often more than twice a day, she will produce a greater volume of milk, put the idea into practice. He speaks of the results as follows:

"We milk at 4:00 a. m., 12:00 noon, and 8:00 p. m., and feed easily and certain times a day just after milking. He is fed twice a day before the second and third milking.

"The milking of the 35 cows in the herd is done by two men by machinery, also the two men do the feeding, take care and clean the machinery, and have the time off when they are not busy. It takes one and one-half hours at a time to do the milking and feeding. The men work about eight hours a day, including the general stable work and the washing of the machines and the care of the milk.

"The increase in the milk yield by the third milking practically pays for all the feed consumed, which leaves the value of the milk for the other two milkings as clear profit. We started milking three times a day with a certain number of cows for three weeks and kept a diary sheet, which showed an increase of from 25 to 33 1/3 per cent in milk production.

When we had raised them to the point where they ceased to increase and the milk yield became stationary, we cut it down to the old schedule of twice a day. In three days the cows had shrunk on their yields to the point where they started three weeks before. They were then put back to three times a day schedule and in four or five days the production was back to the point where it was when the cows were milked three times a day. We feed them less at a mess than when we were feeding twice a day. In the three meals, we probably feed about 25 per cent more than we fed on a day system.

"The cows very soon became used to the routine of three times a day, and look for their new milking just as regularly as cows that are milked twice a day look for the morning and night milking.

"I know from the figures secured by weighing the milk that I am well repaid for the bother of the extra milking. I would not recommend that this system be attempted with cows producing less than 7,000 pounds of milk a year.—The Spokesman.

SPRAYING FOR WILD RADISH.

By Farm Bureau Member K. D. Scott, Stone Ridge, N. Y.

Most of our "Mustard" trouble has consisted in a very plentiful crop of wild radish which is in my opinion a much more serious weed to kill than mustard proper.

Our spraying operations were not successful in killing all the weeds, but they were successful enough to show to us how to do it next year. We used a 4 row Iron Age potato sprayer and by setting the nozzles as close as possible, were able to cover all the ground with a fine mist which came more thoroughly wetted. The difference in effect on the lightly sprayed portions and on the very thoroughly wetted was not marked. So long as the weeds got some of the mist, their growth was checked to the same extent as the droned weeds. Probably the wet season considerably lessened the effect of Iron Sulphate and no doubt every radish seed in sight and out of sight, grew this past summer.

I sprayed some oats and vetch and some oats and peas. The oats and vetch were considerably grown when sprayed, the oats having reached the stage in which the leaves had doubled back and pretty well covered the entire ground, sheltering the young radish plants from the spray. Here our spraying was least successful and also turned the oats a little brown.

The oats and peas were much later sown and as they were sprayed on the same day, they received their treatment at a much earlier stage in growth. In this case the oats stood up erect and afforded very little shelter. The radish seedlings were just then getting their third leaf. They were practically all killed, the oats undamaged and the peas just a trifle scorched, but not to any extent worth troubling about. Under normal summer sun, I doubt if we should have been troubled with much more radish, but more came and the oats were then too far advanced to spray again.

I also tested the application of sulphate of iron on mangel seedlings being smothered by radish, with the result that some mangels received a temporary check and the radish when small enough were killed. If done before the mangels are thick it is safe and expedient and saves a lot of weeding.

The conclusion of the whole matter seems to be to spray early. As soon as weeds coming up can be recognized as radish, mustard or any relation of theirs—get busy while they are unsheltered and their death is sure. Manager Hook bestowed a benefit on us when he recommended to use iron sulphate on any smooth leaved crop.—The Spokesman.

AT NEWBURGH ANNIVERSARY.

The Rev. Mr. Schmidtknecht to Speak at Services.

Tomorrow the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Newburgh, Rev. F. W. Behnke, pastor, will celebrate her fortieth anniversary. The Rev. A. Schmidtknecht of this city is to be the speaker at the first service to be held at 10:30. The morning service at the Spring Street German Lutheran Church will be omitted. Evening service, English, will be held at 7:30 and a subject of the sermon will be "Objects Gained by the Ascension of Christ." As there will be no morning service, a large congregation is anticipated in the evening.

Playground Association Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Kingston Park and Playground Association on Thursday, the 9th of June, at 8 p. m., at the county building, corner of John and Crown streets.

ADVANCEMENT FOR KINGSTON MAN

Alfred Spearman, who has been the local manager the past couple of years for S. B. Thing & Company, Inc., the uptown shoe dealers, has been advanced by the firm to the position of manager of their store in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Spearman is a New Hampshire boy and a wide awake one too, whose ability to introduce original methods and please customers has shown itself in the largely increased business enjoyed by Thing & Company under his management. Mr. Spearman's new position affords him many opportunities for future success which his Kingston friends will note with interest; incidentally he is the youngest manager in the whole chain of Thing stores.

The most unusual black satin cape shown here is dubbed "The Dragon" because of the richly embroidered monster on the brilliant satin. A most impressive garment undoubtedly, for it falls in deep folds from the throat and measures yards and yards around the bottom. A high collar with witchtex lining is arranged so that it can fasten high or low, as the wearer desires.

made by Mr. Pells, there are now thirty-seven farmers in the town of Milan who are applying the treatment. These men have an aggregate of four hundred thirty-three acres of treated oats planted.

Our First Paper Mill.
The first paper mill in America was established in 1690 at Roxbury, near Philadelphia. The second was erected in Germantown in 1710, and the third, founded in 1714 on Chester creek, in Delaware, was the source of Benjamin Franklin's supply—Argonaut.

The most unusual black satin cape shown here is dubbed "The Dragon" because of the richly embroidered monster on the brilliant satin. A most impressive garment undoubtedly, for it falls in deep folds from the throat and measures yards and yards around the bottom. A high collar with witchtex lining is arranged so that it can fasten high or low, as the wearer desires.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

Is it possible to ascertain whether a piece of steel is crystallized without rendering the part useless for the purpose for which it is designed? Is it possible to tell by filing whether a piece of steel is crystallized or not?

An expert metallurgist could tell the condition of a part by examining a filed or brightened spot with a microscope. This would not make the part useless.

My 1912 car is not running satisfactorily. The engine does not pick up and when running slowly and when giving more gas starts pounding very hard. Even retarding and advancing the spark does not help much. At a fifteen mile speed, however, the engine runs freely and takes the gas without pounding. Can you tell me what causes this? I have had the motor overhauled and keep it well oiled.

Probably the first thing about your engine is that it is getting old, and you cannot expect it to have the performance of a new motor. Your trouble would readily be chargeable to excessive carbonization were it not that you have recently had the motor thoroughly overhauled. That source of trouble being eliminated, the next thing is undoubtedly the ignition or the carburetor. Probably your timing is too advanced, preventing firing at the proper time when the engine is running slowly.

How are piston rings held while lapped in the cylinders? Are they left on the piston?

In lapping in the rings, they are put on the pistons in the regular way and worked in with the rest of the motor.

Can you tell me how an amateur can time valves by the flywheel on an ordinary car?

In general you will find the flywheel of a motor marked for the proper timing so that you will not have to do anything further than to see that the marks register with the indicator at the proper time. In case the flywheel is not marked, however, the method of procedure is as follows:

Bring the piston of No. 1 cylinder to upper dead center. On the frame of the motor, close to the flywheel, make a mark and then on the flywheel directly opposite this mark make another so that the two register when the piston of No. 1 cylinder is on upper, dead center. If there is no portion of the engine frame sufficiently close to the flywheel for the two marks to register it will be necessary to fasten to the engine some sort of an indicating mark, such as a piece of sheet metal which extends close to the flywheel. The marks can then be made on this indicator. It is very often possible to slip a piece of sheet metal bent in a Z shape between the two halves of the crank case with a hole so arranged that one of the bolts passes through the sheet of metal and holds it solidly. With the piston of No. 1 cylinder on upper dead center, which can be determined by placing a stick of wood on the top of the piston and moving the crank upward until the stick is at its highest point or by some other means, the valves are allowed to both be closed resting against their seats. The intake valve is then arranged to open at anywhere between dead center and ten degrees past. This is determined on the flywheel by passing a tape around the circumference, starting with the mark for upper dead center of No. 1 cylinder and going entirely around and then laying off the length of the tape in 360 equal parts, each of which, when laid around the flywheel, will represent a degree. The timing gears are then meshed so that the intake starts to open a few degrees past top center.

The exact number of degrees will be determined by the arrangement of the gear teeth, but it must be kept close to the top center. The time of closing of the intake will be determined by the cam and need not trouble you. When you have the mark on the flywheel for the point at which the intake starts to open for a No. 1 cylinder you should mark it I. O. No. 1. The point of exhaust opening is then determined in about the same manner, the opening of the exhaust starting between thirty-five and forty degrees before the lower center on the down stroke succeeding the intake stroke, which, of course, is a down stroke. With the cams determined by the fact that the cam shaft is in your possession, only the openings of the valves need be determined.

After you have marked on the flywheel E. O. No. 1, signifying the exhaust opens for No. 1 cylinder, you should go to the next cylinder which comes into operation and mark the flywheel. After having determined the proper firing position for the No. 1 cylinder, the other cylinders will take care of themselves, since the cam shaft and crank shaft have been designed to act in unison.

In an eight and twelve cylinder motor how many power strokes are there in one revolution of the crank shaft? Four power strokes to a revolution in an eight and six power strokes to a revolution in a twelve.

Misnomer. Mrs. Newman (correctly, after departure of her husband's rich uncle) "It's too bad the dinner was a failure, dear." Mr. Newman: "But it wasn't a failure, darling. It took at least a year from uncle's life."

Kindly advise me how I can eliminate a grinding noise occurring in the differential of my car, and how can I adjust this so that I will not have to buy new gears?

The grinding noise you speak of may be due to foreign matter which has accumulated in the differential gear housing. Before doing anything else it would be well to flush this out with kerosene. The differential can then be packed with heavy grease, and unless the noise is due to considerable wear it should not bother you. The probabilities are that the wear occurs between the driving pinion and the crown gear. Any adjustments at this point should be made by a repair man.

A salesman for one of the standard cars, told me that oxygen acetylene flame, as used in the decarbonizing method today, deposited an ash during the combustion and if any of this ash was left in the cylinder it would cause the walls and injure bearings, etc. He also said that enough grit was deposited in such combustion that if mixed with oil it could be used as a grinding compound for grinding in the valves. Can you tell me if this is true?

Opinions differ somewhat as to the advisability of oxygen decarbonizers, whether it be in motors having aluminum pistons or those having steel or cast iron pistons.

It is not believed that the oxygen flame, or the oxygen acetylene flame, deposits an ash which would be harmful. However, in some instances it has been found that there is a gritty deposit left after the removal of carbon by this process, but it is believed to be a deposit of silicates from the fine sand and dirt which may be drawn into the cylinder with the air through the carburetor. Some forms of this might be sufficiently hard to give trouble if it were not thoroughly washed out. Most of this is carried out with the exhaust after carbon removal, however. Analysis has shown that fully 45 per cent of so called carbon deposit is road dirt.

Can you give me a simple way to trace the miss in a six cylinder engine? When only one cylinder is missing I find it difficult to locate it.

With the motor running, open one compression cock at a time and hold a match so that if that particular cylinder is firing the match will be lighted. The missing cylinder will not ignite the match.

Another simple way is to short circuit the plugs in succession. If you short circuit a working cylinder it will affect the speed and sound of the motor. The missing cylinder will be located when the short circuiting has no effect.

What are helical gears?
Helical gears often are called spiral gears and there is no closely drawn distinction between such forms of gears and worm gearing. The teeth are somewhat twisted and they may have any desired form so long as the mating teeth correspond. If you took a number of very thin spur gears that are placed together side by side and then shift them slightly about their common center so that the teeth do not line, you would have an elementary helical gear. If you ran such a combination of thin gears with another set of thin gears whose teeth were similarly out of line you would have a train of gears in mesh all the time. Now, suppose we were to consider all of the teeth of these very thin gears to blend into one another without the steps between them. They would form twisted teeth, the contact surfaces of which teeth would be smooth and have a certain spiral curve.

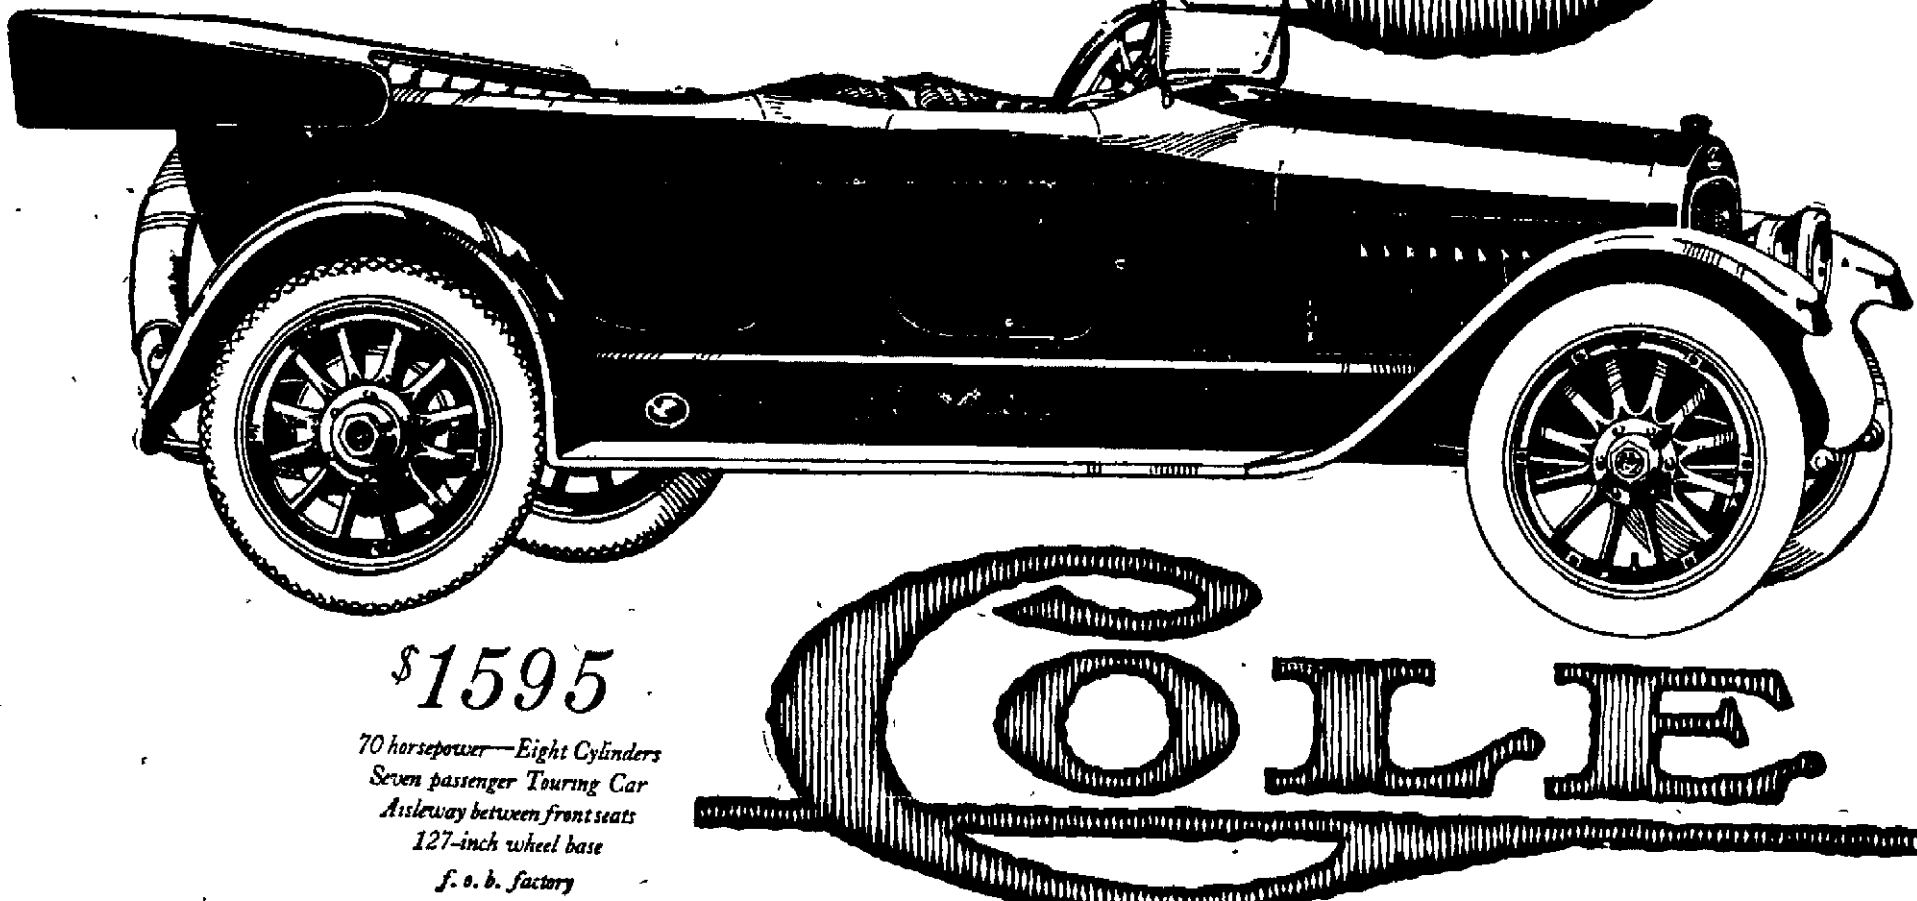

Is it correct that the front wheels of a car should be nearer together than the rear?

Yes. The rims of the front pair of wheels should be about one-fourth to three-eighths of an inch nearer together in front than in the rear. This practice is employed by most car makers and is called foretoe, the idea being to have the wheels parallel when car is running, as it is conceded that when car is being driven forward there will be enough give in the tie rod and steering knuckles to allow the wheels to sag back a little.

What would cause a motor to overheat abnormally with plenty of oil and everything apparently in good condition?

Overheating might be the result of improper ignition timing. If your spark occurs late, due to incorrect setting of the timer, the engine would overheat. Then, too, it might be due to the use of a cylinder oil not adaptable to the engine, or there might be something the matter with the cooling system. Sometimes the rubber piping gets in bad condition, disintegrating and partially or wholly stopping the water circulation. It is best to first have the ignition properly set by an experienced man, and then inspect the water system. Possibly there is a portion of the radiator that is stopped up, preventing the water from circulating through its entire cooling surface as it should.

The Reason and Reward of Success

Success is measured solely by sales. Automobile sales are the direct result of performance.

Therefore the consistent, insistent and increasing demand for the famous Cole Eight must be directly credited to its unapproachable performance.

There now seems to be little chance of our ever catching up with immediate orders.

From a standing start to sixty miles an hour, in less time than you can say it; for swiftness without noise, rattle or vibration; for soft, smooth and perfectly balanced operation; for real economy; for the last word in comfort and smartness—get a Cole Eight.

It's the car of today—and the future. It's the automobile you want. Order yours now.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, June 3.—The Bible class which has been recently reorganized in connection with the Reformed Church will meet after the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening.

The subject for the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening was "Home Missions Are Blessing the World." Reference is found in Ezekiel 47:1-12.

W. H. Benjamin of Yonkers, who was in Kingston on business, spent some time the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Snyder.

Some from this place attended the horse races held at the Ellenville Driving Park on Tuesday.

The High Falls public school was closed on Tuesday for Decoration Day.

Miss Edna Freer, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Richard Purvis, of Kingston, came home on Thursday.

Miss Hattie Giegar of New York city is home on a vacation.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Festus Teaple on Thursday afternoon. There were twenty-two present. All spent a most enjoyable afternoon. Refreshments were served, consisting of cakes and tea. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Philena Kortright.

Mrs. Hutchins and daughter, Dorothy Hutchins, visited town on Thursday.

Clarence Shaw of Walden and his daughter, Miss Frances Shaw, motored through this place on Tuesday. They made several calls in the village. Miss Shaw is doing missionary work at the Crow Indian Mission, Wroia, Montana.

The Butchmans, who have been spending the winter in New York city, expect to come back to their home here the coming week.

Cyrus McKee has left the employment of Jacob Snyder and is going to farm for Marvin Van Wageningen. Mr. and Mrs. McKee will move down on the farm next week.

Mrs. John Delamater and her cousin, Mr. Melvin, of Poughkeepsie, spent Decoration Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Delamater.

The Rev. George Dancremond was out making calls on Wednesday afternoon of this week.

Communion service will be observed in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning.

June, the first summer month is with us once more. All nature has awakened in its beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dym were out driving on Friday afternoon.

Henry Williams is working for Preston Church.

Spencer's School Notes.

Below are the names of several graduates and students of Spencer's Business School, corner of Wall and John streets, who have accepted good business positions within the past few days:

Miss Della Monroe, of the combined course, has secured a permanent position as assistant cashier with A. D. Rose, groceries and meats, 73 Franklin street.

Preston DuBois, an experienced stenographer and bookkeeper, has obtained a good paying position with the National Biscuit Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Miss Pearl Blackwell has secured a position as stenographer in the Hotel Lafayette, Asbury Park, N. J.

Miss Mildred Raiche, a graduate of the stenographic department, has secured a permanent position with L. O. Feldstein, tailor, 730 Broadway.

Misses Urell, Myers and Melius recently passed their final examinations necessary for proficiency as stenographers and typists.

Calls for graduates from the leading commercial houses have been the largest in the school's history, several positions out of the city remaining unfilled. Young people who wish to prepare for professional employment should begin their studies without any undue loss of time. The summer school offers excellent opportunities for high school students and others.

UNION CENTER.

Union Center, June 3.—A great many people from this place spent Decoration Day in Kingston.

Augustus Cole spent a few days at his home here the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Webb and little daughter and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Webb of Rutherford, N. J., came up with their auto on Saturday and visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wageningen, returning home Tuesday.

The supper and social held by the trustees of the chapel on Wednesday evening was well attended.

Rumor says that wedding bells will ring in our midst during the coming week.

Herman Bunje and Mrs. Charles Bunje have gone to Jersey to attend the funeral of a relative.

Miss Harriet Eckert spent this week with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Van Aken, at Kingston.

Alton Cole has returned to his home at Ulster Park having been the guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Constant, while his parents were visiting relatives and friends in Brooklyn and vicinity.

Miss Frances Fannin spent the week end with her parents and had as her guest Miss Rachel Hoffman of Kingston.

Miss Bush and some of the pupils expect to spend Saturday at New Paltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kubicus of Brooklyn spent Decoration Day with Mr. and Mrs. E. Schaefer, Mr.

Kubicus returning home the same day.

Behrend Bunje and Raymond Countant attended the Kingston-Troy baseball game on Tuesday afternoon. A number of young people from this place attended the dance at Esopus on Monday evening.

A Stream of Water.
A high pressure jet of water will bow over a man as easily as if he were a box of matches and leave him half stunned. It will even turn a bullet from its path. Experiments have shown that a jet of water can be produced at such a high pressure that it becomes practically a bar of iron.

Swords have been blunted in attempting to cut through these extra high pressure jets. Some years ago an armed thief attempted to hold up a high official of the Bank of England in his private office. The official managed to get out of the room unharmed and locked the door. A resourceful attendant brought the fire hose. He opened the door sufficiently to insert the nozzle. In a few minutes the would be thief was picked up senseless.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Family Affair.
It was at the information bureau—the place set apart for inquiries about wounded men in the various hospitals. In furthered a particularly pretty girl and addressed the rather severe looking lady in charge.

"I wish," she said, "to see Lieutenant Ernest Wagner. In what hospital is he?"

"Lieutenant Wagner can receive visits only from his relatives."

"I am his cousin."

"And I am his mother."—New York Post.

THE CULPRIT CAME BACK.

Because "Big Sim" Was Only a Sheriff and Not a Surveyor.

A Salt Lake City man tells this story of one "Big Sim," a deputy sheriff of Eureka, from whom no criminal could get away by the cross country method. Sim was familiar with every foot of ground in eastern Nevada and could outrun a coyote.

As deputy sheriff he engaged in several long chases, always with success. His capture of a horse thief known as "Spanish Abe" was the boast of Eureka for a long time.

This Spanish Abe was a "bad actor," who made it his business to appropriate stray cattle and the blooded mares of the neighborhood. With a companion he was finally rounded up and incarcerated in the Eureka jail. The next night, however, the criminals forced the window of their cell and took to the brush, mounted on the steepest animals they could steal.

Big Sim, hours later, hit the trail in pursuit. Spanish Abe turned toward Utah and was changing horses along the road. Big Sim, renewing his mount likewise and cutting across country, gained on the fugitives in the desert. Pursued and pursued had been riding continuously, and the horses were giving way under the strain. But "Big Sim" kept on, and it is said he was well into Utah when he brought Spanish Abe and his companion upon a level with his run and clapped on the hand-cuffs.

"You have no right to take us, Sim," the Mexican whined. "We are in Utah."

"Rats!" Big Sim replied. "I ain't no surveyor. Come on."—Case and Comment.

CAPTIVE BEGGED TO DIE BY SHOT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Marathon, Texas, June 3.—Sergeant I. Sturmwald, Troop A, Fourteenth Cavalry, who guarded Lieut. Col. Natividad Alvarez and Manuel Torres, Mexican prisoners in the Boquillas raid, today told a story of a conflict between pity and duty in which duty won. He said:

"It was my business to watch the prisoners on the long ride to Marathon from the Rio Grande. For the minute it was all the business I had and they were surely watched. Our first camp was at McKinney Springs. There we gave the Mexicans steak and onions and coffee—just what men had."

"They couldn't seem to realize it. Alvarez refused to eat at first, but he ordered Torres to do so. The lieutenant colonel, it seemed, feared the food was poisoned and wanted to have some one else try it."

"Torres is little more than a boy. When we took road again he told me his story. His father, he said, was a poor farmer in the Sacramento district. They had little to eat and when, six months ago, Alvarez at the head of fifty or more bandits told him there were food and new clothes to be had in abundance in Gringo stores along the border, he followed. He had been raised, he said, to hate the Gringo, and rather liked the idea."

"He claimed he had not been in the actual raid on the Deemers store but he admitted getting his clothes from some of the raiders who had."

"He told how the band broke after an American pursuit became a certainty. He had hidden in the desert for three nights until his tongue was swollen and black and he thought he must die of thirst. It was then that he went to the water hole, though the hole was covered by American cavalymen, and begged a drink."

"He expected, he said, to be shot, but he wanted to drink first. Then as he went on, he begged me to intercede for him. He showed me a bit of handkerchief that was his mother's. He showed me a bit of ribbon that his senorita had given him as a token of love and luck."

"And he told me finally if I would get him a lawyer he would be grateful, and once free, would come and work for me or do anything I asked, as long as he had breath."

"I pitied him, way down deep, but I could not show my pity. I looked at the officer who had led the boy and thought evil things. I remembered how raiding murderers had killed a tiny child, and how they had dared to come on American soil."

"I told Torres to be still, that I could do nothing. Then he pleaded to be shot. It would be much more honorable, he said, than to be hanged, as he had heard it was the custom in Gringo land."

"Again I told him be still. 'We drove at night, mostly, to avoid heat and all through the night Torres would ask me in his soft, pathetic Spanish for a quick end. 'You can't appreciate the effect of it all—moonlight and their chains, and the despair of boy who had been led astray. But they're here now and turned over to the sheriff. I'm through, and I've lived up to the oath I took when I enlisted. But, I'm glad I'm through and that oath remains unbroken. My hope is I won't have another detail like it.'"

How To Make Bordeaux Mixture—Nearly Time to Spray for Blight.

Bordeaux Mixture is made with five pounds of lump lime, five pounds of copper sulphate crystals, and fifty gallons of water. Slake the lime carefully so as to get the smooth paste free from lumps. Then dilute it so it will pour like molasses. Dissolve the copper sulphate by suspending it in a clean cloth sack in about four to five gallons of water. It is best to do this in a wooden vessel which does not have iron hoops as the copper sulphate attacks the iron in the hoops. When ready to make the Bordeaux, pour alternately the slaked lime, and then the iron sulphate through a strainer into the sprayer, and when all of the two solutions are in, put in enough more water to make the solution up to fifty gallons. The purpose of straining the ingredients is to keep out any particles which might clog the spray nozzle.

What One Potato Association in the State is Planning to Do.

All members of the association will spray their potatoes at least every ten days throughout the summer. There is no set time for such spraying. In general the best growers aim to spray every time there is a new growth of leaves to be protected, and they prefer to get the spray on just before the rain. Owing to high cost of Copper Sulphate this year, those who usually use Bordeaux mixture will very likely use Pyrox. Pyrox is very highly recommended by people who have used it for both an insecticide and a fungicide. In a normal year, however, Bordeaux is much cheaper. If Bordeaux is used as a 3-5-50 for the first two or three sprays, and if the season is wet, 4-5-50 should be used for the later sprays. Paris Green or Arsenate of Lead is added to the mixture for killing bugs, at the rate of 3 lbs. Arsenate of Lead, or 1 1/2 lbs. Arsenate of Lead, powdered, or 1 1/2 lbs. Paris Green to 50 gallon solution.

JEWISH PENTECOST OBSERVED TUESDAY

The Jewish Pentecost or Feast of Weeks (Shabuoth) will be celebrated on the 7th of June. Its name is derived from the fact that it is celebrated seven weeks after the second day of Passover. All the Biblical injunctions as to the manner in which the feast was to be observed indicate that it was originally agricultural in character. It was in reality a season of thanksgiving for the harvests that had been reaped, beginning with the barley harvest during the Passover to the wheat harvest at the beginning of the summer. The ceremonial offerings prescribed were in keeping with the God-given gifts of the soil that had been gathered.

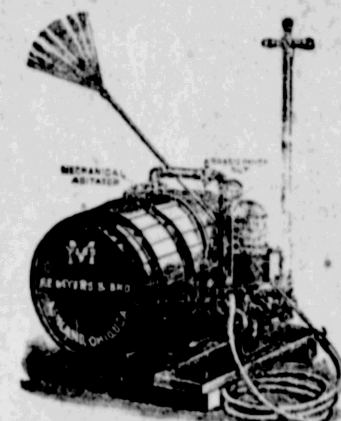

In post-biblical times this feast was observed as the anniversary of the birth of Judaism with the promulgation of the divine law at Sinai. On this "Day of the Giving of the Law," as it was called by the rabbis, the Ten Commandments constitute part of the Scripture readings in the Synagogue. It is this historical aspect of the feast that has been emphasized in the non-agricultural life, which the Jews were compelled to live for centuries.

When the Reform Synagog introduced the rite of confirmation for the Jewish youth, the Pentecost, by virtue of its traditional association with the ancient revelation, was the day most naturally selected for charging the young boys and girls through an impressive public ceremony, with the meaning of the Jewish faith and with the duty of leading a high and religious and moral life.

The agricultural side of the feast, however, was not lost sight of, in that it was customary to decorate home and synagogue with plants and flowers in season. In addition to a portion from the Pentateuch, the charming story of Ruth was prescribed in the synagog because the idyllic scene of harvesting which it contains was in keeping with the celebration of the Harvest Feast. Those observing customs that originated in post-biblical times add a second day to that enjoined in the Bible.

THE ARCH OF CTESIPHON.

Lone Remnant of a Once Wonderful and Magnificent City.

Just below Bagdad, on the Tigris, there stands a wonderful ruin known as the Arch of Ctesiphon—all that remains today of a once mighty city, the one time capital of the Parthian kingdom.

The ruins consist of an immense chamber, 81 feet wide by 154 feet long, with an arched roof in one single span of the whole width, the crown of the arch being 104 feet high. The edifice has a back, but in front is entirely open from top to bottom, displaying the whole of the magnificent vaulted chamber. On one side, at the same height as the arch, extends a kind of facade. The whole building is constructed of burnt bricks about a foot square, and it is supposed that the front was originally cased with marble.

Historical records show Ctesiphon was a second Babylon in point of size and in the splendor of its palaces and princely houses. When taken by the Romans 100,000 captives and a rich booty fell into their possession. Later it became the capital of Persia. Here Chosroes, the twenty-third king of Persia, lived in great style. His throne was in a palace of prodigious height and so vast that it was supported by 40,000 silver columns. Its roof was enriched with 1,000 golden globes, which all had different movements and represented the planets and the various constellations.

Some centuries later this wonderful palace and city were sacked by the Arabs, since when it has gradually decayed, all that remains today being this single arch.—Wide World Magazine.

PITCHERS ANNEX THIRTY GAMES A YEAR

Some Pitching Stars.

Manager Bill Donovan of the New York Yankees declares that Ray Caldwell will win 30 games this season. While one must admit that Caldwell is a grand pitcher and Donovan is an excellent judge of pitching ability, we wonder if the New Yorks' manager realizes the task he is imposing upon Caldwell. Does Donovan know that there are but six pitchers in the game at the present time who have been able to turn in 30 victories in a season, and that four of them are lucky to pitch in that number of games in a year now, much less turn in victories in 30 or more contests?

BILL DONOVAN'S WILD START

Manager of New York Yankees Had Hard Time in Finding Control in His Early Days.

Some of these young pitchers who are having a tough time finding control enough to help them into the big league will do well to recall the early days of Bill Donovan. In his later years, "Wild Bill" became one of the most dependable twirlers in the history of baseball, but when he broke in, he was truly horrible. That's why in the game, though not twirling often, are Jack Coombs, who won 31 games in 1910; Joe Wood captured 34 in 1912, and Ed Walsh, who reached the wonderful mark of 40 victories in 1908. It is out of the question to think that Matty, Wood, Coombs or Walsh will ever perform the feat again, and unless Washington can score more runs for Johnson, the Idaho wonder probably will never reach the 30 mark again.

Only two pitchers have been able to keep the opposing team below an average of 2.50 earned runs per game in getting their 30 victories, which shows how much help a pitcher needs from his teammates. Johnson and Alexander were the two hurlers who went below this mark, each cutting the average below two earned runs per game. With the Yankees struggling along in the second division Caldwell has three times gone through the season allowing less than two earned runs per game, but has never been able to turn in 25 victories.

ribs, and lost by an overwhelming score. A week later he was started against the famous Baltimore Orioles. They made nine hits, drew seven passes and benefited by three wild pitches. All this was in 1898, and Donovan won but one game that year. Bill captured but one victory the next year, when he pitched for Brooklyn, and in 1900 he was at Hartford for seasoning. In 1901 he came to earth and then soared as a star, winning 25 of 40 games.

DIAMOND NOTES

Hal Chase is the baseball hero of Cincinnati.

Jimmy Callahan says he is satisfied with the Pirates.

Fielder Jones is having a hard time as a "miracle man."

Cal Brown, former Mack and Yank, is with the Memphis nine.

The Cleveland club has asked for waivers on Zip Hagerman.

Our country may need its young men, but baseball first yelled for help.

The Washington baseball club used to be a joke—but that was many years ago.

Jack Knight is sure a shining light around that initial sack. What's in a name, anyway?

Don't indulge in snap judgment. Oftentimes the rookie who needs a haircut is a diamond in the rough.

Other clubs carry jokesmiths, but Pat Moran of the Phillies takes the game seriously, so Josh Devore had to go.

Hal Chase is playing better ball this year than since he first joined the Yankees. He is leading in stolen bases and tops the league in hitting.

The ball players who are busy writing testimonials for soft drinks may be kidding the public, but they are not slipping anything over on their managers.

Catching on to Dad. Eddie—Let's sneak round behind the barn and smoke a cigarette. Sammy—Too likely to get caught. Ever since dad swore off he's been sneaking around there to smoke his own. Judge.

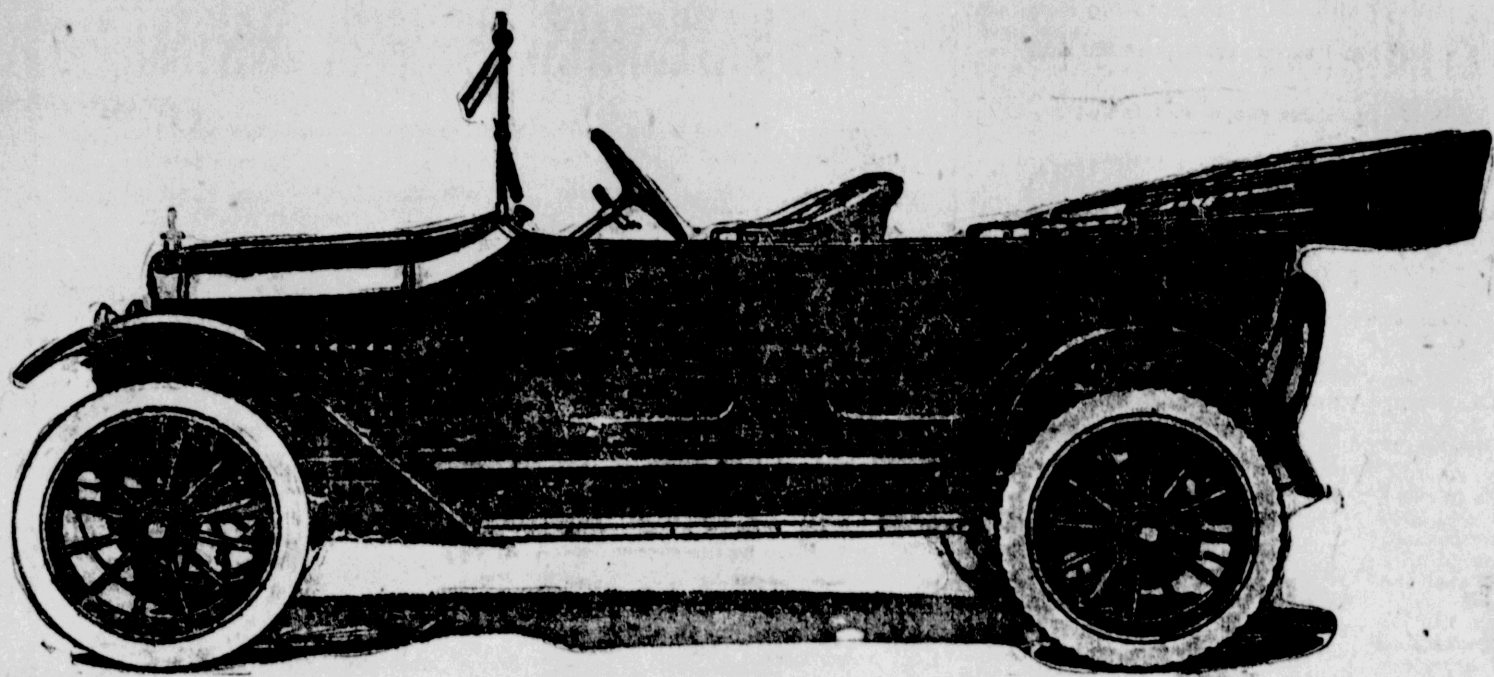

"Wild Bill" Donovan.

Bill was traded all over the old National league and to several other clubs on the Atlantic coast before he settled down.

Donovan's big debut was for Washington against the Giants. He entered a wild and woolly fray in the fifth inning. The Giants made five runs in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh, and then the game was called on account of darkness. A short time later Bill was given a chance to work again, this time against Louisville. Donovan walked six men, caved in one of Dummy Hoy's

A Timely Warning

ELEVEN well-known automobiles have advanced in price within the last ninety days.

The Maxwell Company has not increased their prices. We do not know what their plans are, but we do know and you know that materials entering into the construction of good automobiles now cost from 20 to 300 per cent more than they did six months ago.

Nothing is to be gained by delay. Much may be lost.

Not only may you lose several dollars in the purchase price, but you are sacrificing the enjoyment, the relaxation, the health-giving properties—everything, in fact, that makes motoring the favorite pastime of the nation.

We urge you to come in and investigate the Maxwell.

Or, we will refer you to any number of Maxwell owners and let them tell you their own story in their own way.

They will tell you what they have told us. That the Maxwell is good-looking—that it is powerful—that it is comfortable—that it is economical—in short, that it is the best investment they ever made. They will tell you more and they will tell you gladly and freely.

That's the way they feel toward us and the Maxwell Car.

Whatever you do, don't put this off. We have a few cars on hand and can take orders for immediate or future delivery—at present prices. If you can't come in today, phone us for a Maxwell demonstration.

EDDIE PLANK

PLANK HOPES TO PITCH UNTIL HE IS FORTY-FIVE.

Eddie Plank, the former Athletic and St. Louis Federal pitcher, who is now with the Browns, refuses to be counted out. He scoffs at the idea that he won't amount to much this season, and confounds his critics by the assertion that he expects to keep on pitching in the majors until he is 45 years old. According to all that dope, the hero of Gettysburg will stick around another five years. In a garrulous moment the other day he consented to talk about himself. Here is what he had to say:

"I've never had a sore arm, and when I quit the game it will be because I'm tired of it. I'm forty now, but I'm going to stick in the big leagues for five more years. At forty-five then, I think I'll be prepared to stay at home. Pitching is a job. It must be studied by the pitcher. He must study the other fellow, the batter, and then give him what he knows he cannot hit. That's the way I have pitched for fifteen years. The fellow with the fast ball will last longer than the one with the curve. I'll pitch five fast ones to a single curve or slow ball. But the winning pitcher must have the combination. He must mix 'em to the batter. Control is the biggest point. If you can put it where you want, then you'll win more games than you lose."

Early Pipe Organ Builders.

The first pipe organ in history was made by Ctesibius, an Alexandrian mechanic, about 300 B. C. According to the descriptions of old writers, it was believed to have represented a stage of efficiency not attained again until the eighteenth century. It was praised by Cicero and emperors found pleasure in playing it. History is able to record a pipe organ-builder—Sylvester II, who is believed to have constructed a hydraulic organ.

LAWS THAT ARE NOT LAWS.

Many Statutes in England That Simply Could Not Be Enforced.

There are many written laws in England which the unwritten law permits us to break. One of the most surprising of these is playing football. Strictly speaking, football is illegal.

There has been heretofore great disorder caused by a company of lewd and disorderly persons using that unlawful exercise of foot ball at their pleasures. The opening words of an act of parliament passed in 1602, and any one who "uses that unlawful exercise" is still liable to a fine of twelve pence.

"Why don't you take the pledge?" This piece of advice is offered every day by magistrates to what the police call "confirmed drunks" when they appear in the courts, and excellent advice it is. But, all the same, in offering it the magistrate is breaking a law himself.

According to an act of Edward VI's reign, which has never been repealed, people who conspire with or induce others to abstain from certain drinks and foods are liable to imprisonment as rogues and vagabonds. You may take the pledge yourself, but you may not advise other people to.

Do you go to the theater? Of course you do. And do you stay to see the last act? Again, of course, you do. But by witnessing that last act you are breaking the law.

An act which has been on the statute book for more than 200 years declares that persons assembling or causing others to assemble in any "booth, theater or place of public entertainment" after 10 o'clock in the evening are violating the written law.—Pearson.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 3, 1916.

Disaster has perched upon British arms in the first great naval clash of the war where the odds were anywhere near equal between the opposing squadrons. Even the equanimity of the average Britisher, born of deep-seated confidence in the invulnerability of that magnificent navy, must be shaken by this encounter off the Skager Rack. The state of the official mind in London was indicated in the first outspoken denial of any naval engagement or losses which greeted the message from Berlin via the Saybrook wireless station. Then came a half-hearted admission of some of the facts followed by the humiliating confirmation of the German report in its essential details. The victory is another tribute to the sheer audacity of the Germans who have again and again carried the battle to their enemies at sea as well as on land. It is far more pleasant to chronicle such a daring enterprise rather than to report more "Frightfulness" applied to merchantmen. Why the British have not taken a leaf from the German book and essayed some spectacular assault upon the forces within the vicinity of the Kiel canal is a mystery. Such action, even though foolhardy, might prove of value for home consumption, to say nothing of real advantage that might accrue in the event of a successful surprise. The Jutland encounter was a real sea battle with the honors falling to German gunners in the ratio of ten to three, the numbers of war vessels put out of commission on each side. Another assault of this nature and the Allies will be asking about the abilities of their Anglian associates in the line of sea-fighting outside of history books.

Forty-six days at sea without touching land is the latest exploit of a submarine, and it should cause Americans to consider carefully the possibilities of attack against our shipping and our seacoast cities in the event of war between the United States and a European power. The trip was made by a British undersize boat, which was compelled to remain submerged for forty out of the first forty-eight hours. Nothing is more conducive to a contented state of mind than a feeling of security, but security is not obtained either by platitudinous appeals for peace or an ostrich-like attitude. For some years we have listened to oratory whose purport was that the brotherhood of man was spreading so fast that within a brief period all nations would disarm and the money spent in armaments would be turned into the channels of art, science and trade. Arbitration was to take the place of armed force in all international disputes, and the dove of peace hovered so near that it was almost possible to follow the childish amusement of trying to put salt on her tail. Even while orators were prevailing on people to adopt this view, Mexico was murdering American travelers and residents, but still the American people hesitated to believe that conditions were serious. Nearly two years have elapsed since the European conflict began, and it shows no signs of slackening, while in Mexico our army is doing nothing although it set out to "get Villa alive or dead." The man who is armed and prepared for a foe is better able to meet the emergency if the foe appears than the man who owns neither gun, ammunition nor locks in his doors. It is well enough to pray for peace, but it is a good maxim to keep the powder dry, as a famous Revolutionary soldier advised. Better yet, it is a good plan to have a supply of powder and also a gun.

Business never suffers for lack of some form of activity which will furnish business for the legal profession. The day of what were known as "line fence" cases almost faded from the courts a number of years ago. "Hoax" cases are a rarity. Assault and slander still maintain a respectable standing. The insurance law is quite well settled, although new questions occur not infrequently over the rights of third parties. The day of negligence cases practically disappeared with the passage of workmen's compensation acts, but the increasing automobile traffic is furnishing a new class of cases, principally for personal injuries, to take their place. The European war is furnishing still another new class of cases, involving war contracts. These cases are for commissions, either earned or merely promised; shares in profits; ton Post.

and suits resulting from misunderstandings or disagreements in regard to financing the contracts which in most cases have proved profitable beyond expectation. All these will keep the courts busy for some time, and when business in that line begins to slacken there will be something new. Old and well tried principles are involved in all of these cases, but disputes arise over the application of the principles to certain facts and the courts must continue to remain the arbiters between litigants. The legal profession may have its ups and downs, its busy seasons and its dull days, but until men have attained a state of perfection or else adopt pacifism in their ordinary affairs of life there will always be opportunity for the lawyer, and no immediate apprehension need be felt that the profession will die and become forgotten.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Ranall—"After twenty-five years of married life she loves her husband as much as ever." Rogers—"Yes, and she annoys him in other ways, too."—Life.

"Do you think with your native American independence you would feel unnerved in the presence of a king?" "Not if I held an ace."—Baltimore American.

"What is your idea of a political leader?" "One who is able to perceive the way the crowd is going, and follows with loud whoops in that direction."—Judge.

Novelist—"Those confounded critics roasted my new novel unmercifully." Friend—"Well, you have your revenge—they had to read the book, didn't they?"—Boston Transcript.

"Is your new motor car a good bill-climber?" "Fine," replied Mr. Chuggins. "I only wish it would draw the line at hills. Sometimes it wants to try a treebox or a telephone pole."—Washington Star.

"Ah! A package of old love letters, tied round with a faded pink ribbon. I could shed tears at the sight of them." "Piffle! For true faith nothing surpasses a bundle of cancelled checks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Angelic Treatment. "The late John Townsend Trowbridge, author of 'Darius Green and His Flying Machine,' had a quaint way of expressing himself," said a New York editor.

"A girl asked Mr. Trowbridge's advice one day about marrying an impecunious young poet. 'How much does he make?' Mr. Trowbridge asked.

"Oh," said the girl, "he only makes about $6 a week. He's no pay-your-own-way poet. But," she added, fervently, "but he says he'll treat me like an angel."

"Humph," said Mr. Trowbridge. "I suppose so. Nothing to eat and less to wear."—New York Times.

The Best Thing. Charles W. Mortimer, British consul at Los Angeles said of a gunner:

"To improve one's carriage, to acquire a manly look, there is nothing like doing one's duty by one's country."

"A young Englishman asked his doctor the other day: 'Doctor, what is the best thing to expand the chest?'

"War medals," the doctor answered."—Los Angeles Times.

An Appropriate Alteration. In his later years Frederick William, King of Prussia, was sorely afflicted with gout. The twinges of pain aggravated his naturally irascible temper. During the attacks he was accustomed to divert his mind by painting. His models were always soldiers. In this relation the Germans tell a story.

One day he kept a tall grenadier posing for a long time. At length the picture was finished. The king turned to the man, and in a terrible voice, asked:

"What do you think of that?" "The cheeks are redder than mine," was the hesitating response.

"I'll soon fix that!" roared the old king. He seized his brush and painted both cheeks of the terrified grenadier a brilliant red.—New York Press.

Fire Prevention. On fire prevention day School No. 1 observed it in the usual way. The children seemed very much interested and at the lunch hour two girls discussed it seriously.

"I heard of a way to prevent fire," one of them suggested gravely. "What was it?"

"Well, I read it in a paper. It's a good way in the winter, but I don't think it would work in the summer. Some things are that way, you know, sort of seasonal. That doesn't make them the less valuable though."

"Of course not," encouraged her companion. "To begin with, you are always to have a glass of water handy when fire breaks out and then—"

"Well?" "You pour the water out the window and slide down the icicles."—The Indianapolis News.

A Wise Child. A miserly landlord was going round collecting his rents the other day. At one house he was greatly interested in a little girl, who watched open-mouthed and opened the business of paying over the money and accepting the receipt.

He patted her on the head, and started to search his pockets, saying, "I must see what I have got for you."

After searching his pockets for some time he at last brought out from a remote corner a pepper.

As he handed it to the girl he said, "And now what will you do with that?" The little girl looked at it, then at him, and replied, "Wash it."—Boston Post.

DR. LARKIN OPENS KINGSTON OFFICE

Former Kingstonian Guest of Honor at Banquet Tendered by City Officials of Yonkers—To Make Home in This City.

Dr. John F. Larkin, who has been stationed at Yonkers for the past six years, has returned to Kingston and opened an office at No. 37 Suyvesant street. He will make his home in Kingston hereafter. For several years he has been quarantine officer of the city of Yonkers, where a farewell banquet was given in his honor at the Park Hill Inn last Saturday night. Former Mayor Michael J. Walsh was one of the speakers and in his address stated that in going from Yonkers to be with his parents in their old age, Dr. Larkin revealed one of the characteristics which had won for him countless friends. A handsome black leather hand bag was presented to Dr. Larkin by the diners, the presentation speech being made by Public Safety Commissioner James J. Fleming. Alderman Thomas A. Brogan was the toastmaster for the occasion and besides the speakers mentioned, speeches were made by Mayor James T. Lennon, Alderman Frederick H. Stilwell, Dan C. Nolan and Dr. Larkin's brother-in-law, Andrew J. Cook, of this city, who was one of the invited guests. Dr. Larkin made a fitting response to the farewell addresses, all of which were highly eulogistic and bespoke the regard in which he is held in Yonkers. Dr. Larkin was graduated from Ulster Academy in 1904, and after a course of study at Cornell was graduated from the Cornell Medical College in 1910, since which time he has been practicing at Yonkers.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Waist 1603—Skirt 1602—A Style With Newest Lines. Comprising Ladies' Waist Pattern, 1603, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 1602.

Peacock blue serge, with red and gold embroidery would be nice for this. The waist is full at the shoulders beneath yoke sections of the back. A smart revers collar and tiny vest completes a charming effect. The skirt is novel and chic in its draped effect. Fawn color and blue gabardine could be combined for this model. Pompadour taffeta with matched satin facing is also nice. The sleeve in wrist length is close-fitting below the elbow. In short length it has a neat turnback cuff.

The waist pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. The skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. To make the dress will require 5 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. Linen, voile, crepe, satin, broadcloth and gingham are good for this style. The skirt measures about 3 1/2-3 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps by The Freeman pattern department. Be sure to state size wanted.

MAYOR CANFIELD'S SYRACUSE SPEECH

Mayor Canfield returned Friday night from the Mayor's Conference held at Syracuse. The mayor was elected one of the five mayors who constitute the State Municipal Bureau Council which has charge of the Bureau of Information at Albany.

Mayor Canfield and City Manager Carr of Niagara Falls, and A. Prescott Folwell, editor of the Municipal Journal, spoke Friday on the subject of Standard Units for Comparing Municipal Improvements.

In discussing the subject the mayor said in part:

Mr. Folwell, in his interesting and timely paper, tells us of the inception of the present foot measurement. History tells us also that King Henry of England in 1120 ordered that the ell, which was the ancient yard, should be the exact length of his arm. These were the first attempts to have any standard measurements in England. Blackstone, in his commentaries, said: "Most nations have regulated the standard of measures of length by comparison with parts of the human body."

This may seem a crude beginning for the standard unit of measurement which is being used by millions of people every day. The quantity which may be chosen for a unit may be arbitrary, but certain relations must be established between the adopted units for the purpose of convenience. Thus, fundamental units are chosen arbitrarily, but derived units are defined in terms of fundamental units.

In physics, the fundamental units adopted are those of length, mass and time. In chemistry, a specific value is given to a solution which is obtained by analysis, so that it may be used as a standard in determining the value of like solutions. We have our standard multiplication tables and our standard scales. In mathematics, the unit is any given quantity with which others of the same kind are compared for the purpose of measurement and in terms of which their magnitude is stated. By this method the numerical value of a concrete quantity is expressed by stating how many units, or what part of a unit, the quantity contains. Thus, we say, "half a pound" or "half a foot," making a pound the unit of weight and a foot the unit of length.

The universal unit of time is the second. The legal standard of mass in Great Britain is the imperial pound avoirdupois, and in France it is the kilogram. In geology we have coal measures and lead measures and other standard measures which are based upon a series of related strata having the same common feature. We likewise have geometric, mechanical and electrical units.

We also have standards fixed by our state agricultural and other laws. We have our standard language composed of words with standard meanings. Standard school books to serve as a model, a guide, a test and a gauge for all the public school children, and for the convenience of the teachers and educational departments was advocated here yesterday, as were uniform bond laws and accounting systems.

In almost everything we have some measure of extent, quantity, quality or value established by law or by general usage and consent with the accuracy and authority of a standard. In almost everything we have something which is used and sanctioned as a definite unit, by reference to which other measuring instruments and things may be constructed, tested or regulated.

As I have stated, the means whereby some of these units or standards were started or begun may seem crude, but what is cruder than no unit or standard whatever. As one noted writer said, "We will not boast of things without our measure." We read that nearly thirty centuries ago "Solomon's provision for one day was thirty measures of fine flour and three score measures of meal."

Because the people of centuries and hundreds of centuries ago realized the necessity of standard units, we have, in comparing the municipal pavement and construction work of the various cities, the foot, the dollar and the hour and other fundamental units, with a system of derived units based upon them or upon multiples or submultiples of them. We all measure linear distances by finding the number of times and fractions of times a unit distance is contained in it, and areas and solid bodies by comparison with the same unit area which is the square and unit solid which is the cube of the linear unit.

These things being all true, why is it that the specifications for what is called street pavement and sewer construction, of the same class and character, are different in the various cities? When we can measure the skill or strength of an athlete in California in comparison with one in New York, why is it that when we read the reports of boards or commissioners of public works we cannot determine whether or not the cost of sewer construction and street paving within their respective jurisdictions has been costly or otherwise? It is because we have no generally accepted standard units to estimate the ascertained cost of the work by comparison with the cost of similar work in other cities. It is because there is no relative similarity or resemblance in the units of the respective works. It is because the work is incapable of comparison without a minute analysis, as it is not based upon a fixed standard.

In other words, we cannot place together and side by side, either literally or mentally, the cost of such work in the various cities, because the elements and the qualities that enter into the respective cost there, do not bear much of a relation or resemblance to each other, and consists of points not only of likeness but also of unlikeness. They cannot be compared because they are not parallel cases or examples of work, because they are not based upon standard units.

It must plainly appear to us that if the cities are to forge ahead with a spirit of efficiency and success in this kind of work, they must standardize certain things so that they will form a basis not merely for adjustment or regulation, but also for comparison with other cities and with other years of the same city. That is the modern municipal spirit and the progressive stride that leads to the points where we exercise all of our effective power and energy to produce proper effects and results.

GREELEY'S ADVICE AIDED MR. BALCH

Former Kingston Man Became Sheriff of Benn County, Colorado, at Age of 23—Searching for Friends of His Boyhood.

Charles C. Balch of Albuquerque, New Mexico, who was born in Kingston and ran away from home when he was nine years old, is visiting in town for the first time since his boyhood. His father, who died when the son was very young, was a well known resident of Kingston for many years, and was related to the Ingram family. The late Henry B. Ingram of this city, who was a cousin of Charles C. Balch, having been named after the father. After leaving Kingston, Mr. Balch made his way to the west, going to Hunter, Colorado, which was at the end of the Santa Fe route. Travel from that point was by stage and on horseback. Hunter at that time had a population of 2,500 and contained 23 saloons. It was a typical frontier town of the early days. Mr. Balch remained there for a while and worked his way up. At the age of 23 years he was elected sheriff of Benn County, Colorado, and held that office for some time. He invested in real estate in Colorado, and by close application to business accumulated a competence. He retired from active work recently and purchased a summer home at Woodhaven, Long Island, where he will spend each part of the summer which he does not spend in Kingston.

Today Mr. Balch began searching for boyhood companions and found two, but he intends to remain here until he has located and seen all the other boys of his early acquaintance.

CAT DOUSED IN OIL AND SET ON FIRE

Adam Thiel and Chester Kilmer Arrested—Charged With Atrocious Act—Both Plead Not Guilty—Trial Adjourned to Thursday.

Friday afternoon Sergeant Hanley arrested Adam Thiel and Chester Kilmer, both 19 years old, on a warrant sworn out by the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on a charge of saturating a cat in oil and then setting fire to the animal. This morning both young men were arraigned before Recorder Lang, and through their attorney, Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, entered a plea of not guilty and the trial was adjourned to Thursday afternoon. Amos Van Etten appeared in behalf of the society.

The complaint to the society was made by Thomas Van Demark, of No. 99 Gage street.

It is understood that the young men claim that they were sitting on their front porch on Gage street when they saw the cat on fire come around the corner of the house, and it was while they were trying to save the cat's life that the man who made the complaint to the society saw them and thought that they were the ones who committed the deed.

RESERVOIR CLAIM AT WILLOW BROOK

Business Commission No. 4, Messrs. Gibson, Elting and Deyo, on Wednesday and Friday heard the claim of Mrs. Isabella V. James for the decrease in value of her established business at Broadhead's Bridge by the construction of the Ashokan reservoir. For many years Mrs. James conducted the large and famous Willow Brook House, which was the resort of many prominent New Yorkers, among her guests being John Robeling, the engineer of the Brooklyn bridge, and his family; Thomas Moran, the well known marine artist; Dr. Butler, the author of the Philosophy of Christianity, and many clergymen and educators. Mrs. James was the adopted daughter of the Rev. Dr. Case and his wife, the doctor being a well known Dutch Reformed clergyman. She built the business up from small beginnings until it was regarded as the largest and most important one of its kind in the Catskills. Assistant Corporation Counsel William Grogan represented the city, and Judge Clearwater and Senator Walton appeared for Mrs. James.

WOULD SAVE LIVES ALONG WATERWAYS

State Superintendent of Public Works Witherspoon Reports More Drownings in Erie Canal Than Along Canalized Mohawk and Hudson Rivers.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, June 3.—In an endeavor to discover the cause and to prevent the large number of drowning accidents along the canal route of the state, General W. W. Witherspoon, state superintendent of public works, is making a close study of the cases surrounding the finding of bodies in the canal.

Since January to the present time, twenty-four people have been found in the canal. Some have been infants, some men and in a few cases the unfortunates were women. Death was met in the result of boat accidents, breaking through the ice, alcoholism, suicide and suspected foul play. Last year the number of those who were found in the canal was 150. This caused Superintendent Witherspoon much concern and he determined to make a most careful investigation into the details attending the finding of bodies in the canal this year.

Superintendent Witherspoon has collected newspaper clippings bearing upon canal fatalities and has prepared a table, which he is keeping up to date, showing the verdicts of coroners' juries upon such cases.

Although it would appear that the canalized Mohawk and Hudson rivers would offer a wider field for drowning accidents, as a matter of fact, more deaths have occurred in the old portion of the canal system. Under Superintendent Witherspoon's orders wire cables have been placed along the stretches of the vertical walls on the western division near the water's edge with ladders at frequent intervals, to afford assistance to those falling into the water. The locks and practically all of the important structures on the canal are equipped with life saving apparatus consisting of life preservers and lines of ropes. All of the operating employees of the department have been instructed to do everything possible even at personal risk, to prevent loss of life at the structures to which they have been assigned. Upon several occasions I have been gratified to note that through the prompt action of department employees, persons were saved from death.

In his report covering the year 1915, Superintendent Witherspoon will devote considerable space to the subject of fatalities along the canal and recommend such as he believes will lessen the drowning accidents.

MAY UNITE BRITAIN AND ITALY IN MARRIAGE ALLIANCE.
(Princess Jolande and Prince Edward).

Italy and England may soon be allied not only by the bonds of war but by a royal marriage as well, if the report of the engagement of Princess Jolande of Italy to Edward, Prince of Wales, is true. The 22-year-old Prince of Wales visited Rome a few weeks ago and then made a trip to the Italian front, where he was the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. After his return the king is said to have summoned the princess, with the queen, to army headquarters to extend his congratulations. It was while returning from this visit that the queen and Princess Jolande narrowly escaped death when Austrian aviators attacked their train.

The Princess Jolande celebrated her 15th birthday June 1. She is said to be extremely popular with the Italian people. Interest in the reported engagement centers in the fact that the bonds of friendship between two of the Allies would be materially strengthened by the marriage.

PRITCHARD SAID HE MADE MISTAKE

Withdrew His Charge Against Lipscomb as They Had Become Friends Again, and Had Shaken Hands—Lipscomb Discharged.

This morning in recorder's court when the case of William Pritchard against John Lipscomb, whom he accused of stabbing him in the leg with a knife in Guadagnola's saloon at Kingston Point, was called it was announced by Mr. Pritchard that he desired to withdraw the complaint against Mr. Lipscomb as he had made friends with him again. Both are colored men, employed in the brick yards.

Questioned by Recorder Lang as to why he withdrew the complaint Mr. Pritchard said that he had made a mistake and was not sure whether John was the man who stabbed him in the leg or not. Both he and John denied that any financial settlement had been made, although John said that he had paid the $3 bill charged by the doctor for attending William. The case was partly tried the other day, but was held open by Recorder Lang until he could hear the testimony of the woman in the case, Mary Masten, and the colored minister who had attempted to have the two men, bury the hatchet and become friends. The minister was present in court today, but the police had been unable to locate Mary, who was said to have left town.

The fight occurred over Mary and William had claimed that John had stabbed him. John claimed that he had no knife and in the excitement of the fight some other negro with a grudge against William had done the stabbing.

Recorder Lang granted the request of William and discharged John. John Cashin, was attorney for Lipscomb, while Judge O'Reilly appeared for Pritchard.

GET READY FOR OLD AGE.

Start Saving at Once if It Be Only a Cent a Day.

I care not now humble the circumstances of any reader may be, they are not too humble to enable him or her to begin to save and to prepare for the time in life when the vacation of old age must be taken. Remember that the earlier you begin the more you will have and that if you save but a cent a day at the end of the year you will have set aside nearly $4. That is something to begin with.

Persons are heard to say, "I can't save; I don't know how, and I can save so little that it never will amount to anything!" All wrong. You can save. If you begin with only a single cent, a five cent piece, a dime or a dollar.

The principal point to remember is that your money will earn something for you if you will only set it aside for that purpose, and it will work day and night while you are sleeping, working or resting. One hundred dollars in the savings bank at the end of the year will be worth $104, as it will earn 4 per cent interest. The same amount invested in a good bond will earn you $5 or $6 by the close of the year.

Better than all, you will have established the habit of thrift and saving. When once you have accumulated a $100 bond or two the rest will come much easier, and you will be surprised and delighted to realize that you are not left without means of support. It is a good thought to be ready for the vacation that must come with old age. —Jasper in Leslie's Weekly.

How Sheridan Paid a Debt.

No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy theatrical management of his did he extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the green room to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid.

"My dear lord," said the impecunious manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her."

The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and the debt was canceled. —London Standard.

YOUNGSTERS TAKEN TO HOME.

Superintendent Took Four Children to Port Jervis Friday.

Superintendent Edmonston of the City Home on Friday took four children to Port Jervis where they were placed in St. Mary's Orphan Asylum. The children were James Lewis, 10 years old; William Kelly, aged 11 years; and Mary and Francis Schoenhof, aged 12 and 9 years. The children were a charge on the city and the charity commissioners instructed the superintendent to place them in that institution. Three of the children were inmates of the Home of the Holy Childhood in Ponckhockie and were taken to another institution because that home will be closed. The other child was being supported by its mother, who found it impossible to earn enough to keep both the child and herself.

Wasted Talents.

The train robber suddenly appeared as many of the passengers were preparing to retire for the night. "Come, shell out!" he demanded as he stood towering above an eastern clergyman who had just finished a devout prayer.

The minister looked at him sadly for a moment and then said: "If I had such energetic fellows as you to pass the plate now and then I might have something to give you." —Harper's Magazine.

No Wonder.

POMONA GRANGERS IN JUNE MEETING

Milk Way a Rocky Road to Travel
According to Testimony Offered by Producers—Grange Revival in Progress in Ulster.

The June meeting of the Ulster County Pomona Grange, held at Gardner on Friday, was one of the best attended and most enjoyable June sessions ever held by that organization. Usually in June the members are too busy on their farms to have any time to spare on social affairs, but this year seems an exception, the attendance at the meeting being between 75 and 100 and 10 of the 13 granges in the county being represented.

From reports received by Secretary Harold V. Story and verbal reports made at the meeting it is apparent that there is a "Grange revival" in progress in Ulster county, particularly in Stone Ridge, New Paltz and Plattekill. Stone Ridge Grange completed its new hall and will hold dedication ceremonies on Thursday afternoon of next week at 2:30 o'clock, at which time Sherman J. Lowell, Master of the State Grange, will be present and all Grangers are invited. The O. & W. trains will be met at High Falls by conveyances and visitors will be taken back to High Falls in time for the early evening trains.

In view of the fact that the Pomona Grange has not met in Stone Ridge in many years and that every body wants to see the new hall, it was unanimously decided to hold the September meeting at that place.

An interesting discussion of the apple packing law and the effort made to have the legislature repeal it was led by J. A. Hepworth of Milton, a grower of prize apples and a warm advocate of the law, which has the support of the State Fruitgrowers' Association. While it was admitted that in some cases packers had been severely punished for an innocent error, it was also shown that had they not procrastinated, but gone at once with their explanations and excuses, they might have been treated more leniently. It was only those who had ignored notices and willfully violated the law who have been punished with what looked like undue severity.

Mr. Kraft on Milk Problem.

Overseer Henry McCormick of Putnam presided at the morning session in the absence of W. M. John E. Kraft and at the afternoon session Mr. Kraft presided and led a discussion of milk prices that may bear fruit in the finding of a new market for Wallkill Valley milk at better prices. Mr. Kraft pointed out the jokers in the contract the producers now have and showed clearly that the creameries took the lion's share of the profit from the better grades of milk.

The literary program, under charge of C. E. Davis of Lake Katonah, opened with a decidedly milky flavor. Mrs. J. W. Alford of Clintonville read a humorous poem giving the dairyman's experience in a rather pessimistic vein, while C. B. Wright of Gardner read a semi-optimistic view of the cow as a mortgagee. Mrs. R. K. Coward of New Paltz, who has a voice such as is not often heard outside the ranks of professional singers, gave a solo that was most heartily applauded. Harold V. Story of Ulster Park read a brief but extremely strong and well written paper on "Grange Influence," and there was singing by the entire assemblage. Mrs. M. E. Stephens of Gardner at the organ.

Debate on School Law.

An informal debate on the proposed new township school law followed, led by C. E. Davis and participated in by a number of members, including I. C. Barnes, C. B. Wright, Dr. M. E. Stephens, J. A. Hepworth, John E. Kraft and others, during which a great deal of light was shed on the provisions of the proposed law and also upon the fads and fancies of the school system.

At the end of the debate a lady who said she was the mother of nine children and who evidently did not agree with what had been said, urged that the other side be heard. It was agreed to continue the subject at the next meeting and urge the Suburban Granges to discuss it thoroughly before reaching a conclusion. The State Department of Education has asked for the Grange opinion and will be in large measure governed by it in its attitude toward the bill.

After voting $25 to the Ulster County Farm Bureau and listening to a short address by County Deputy Barnes in praise of Farm Bureau efficiency the meeting adjourned.

FARMERS' CONFERENCE.

Dates for Institute to be Arranged on June 24.

On Saturday, June 24th, at 10:00 a. m., at the Court House, Kingston, N. Y., Prof. D. J. Crosby and Edward Van Alstyne will hold a conference to arrange for Farmers' Institutes and Farm Demonstration Schools for the coming winter.

If your community wants either one or the other of these meetings, it will be necessary for a representative of that community to be present at the conference, voice their request, and demand their wish be granted. The most successful Farmers' Institutes last winter and the winter before were those at which the ladies of the community co-operated by providing a paid dinner for those who attended the institute. Consequently, this year, any community requesting a paid dinner, should receive more consideration than one which makes no offer.

A Farm Demonstration School, comprising five solid days of study, lectures and demonstrations, can be secured wherever 40 students will enroll and pay a tuition fee of $1.00 each. No community can have both a Farmers' Institute and a Farm Demonstration School.

If you want your community to have an institute or a school, be sure to be on hand with a delegation to show your interest.

MILKING THREE TIMES A DAY.

President Young of the Farm Bureau Says It Does.

Chester Young of Napanoch, N. Y., working on the idea that a cow owes to her owner a certain capacity, and that if the cow is given relief by taking the milk away from her, often twice a day, she will produce a greater volume of milk, put the idea into practice. He speaks of the results as follows:

"We milk at 4:00 a. m., 12:00 noon, and 8:00 p. m., and feed ensilage and grain three times a day just after milking. Hay is fed twice a day before the second and third milking."

"The milking of the 35 cows in the herd is done by two men by machinery, also the two men do the feeding, take care and clean the machinery, and have the time off when they are not busy. It takes one and one-half hours at a time to do the milking and feeding. The men work about eight hours a day, including the general stable work and the washing of the machines and the care of the milk."

"The increase in the milk yield by the third milking practically pays for all the feed consumed, which leaves the value of the milk for the other two milkings as clear profit."

We started milking three times a day with a certain number of cows, for three weeks and kept a diary sheet, which showed an increase of from 25 to 33 1/3 per cent in milk production. When we had raised them to the point where they ceased to increase and the milk yield became stationary, we cut it down to the old schedule of twice a day. In three days the cows had shrunk on their yields to the point where they started three weeks before. They were then put back to four or five days the production was back to the point where it was when the cows were milked three times a day. We feed them less at a meal than when we were feeding twice a day. In the three meals, we probably feed about 25 per cent more than we fed on the twice a day system.

"The cows very soon became used to the routine of three times a day, and look for their new milking just as regularly as cows that are milked twice a day look for the morning and night milking."

"I know from the figures secured by weighing the milk that I am well repaid for the bother of the extra milking. I would not recommend that this system be attempted with cows producing less than 7,000 pounds of milk a year."—The Spokesman.

SPRAYING FOR WILD RADISH.

By Farm Bureau Member K. D. Scott, Stone Ridge, N. Y.

Most of our "Mustard" trouble has consisted in a very plentiful crop of wild radish which is in my opinion a much harder weed to kill than mustard proper.

Our spraying operations were not successful in killing all the weeds, but they were successful enough to show us how to do it next year. We used a 4 row Iron Age potato sprayer and by setting the nozzles as close as possible, were able to cover all the ground with a fine mist which some was more thoroughly wetted. The difference in effect on the tightly sprayed portions and on the very thoroughly wetted was not marked. So long as the weeds got some of the mist, their growth was checked to the same extent as the droned weeds. Probably the wet season considerably lessened the effect of Iron Sulphate and no doubt every radish seed in sight and out of sight, grew this past summer.

I sprayed some oats and vetch and some oats and peas. The oats and vetch were considerably grown when sprayed, the oats having reached the stage in which the leaves had doubled back and pretty well covered the entire ground, sheltering the young radish plants from the spray. Here our spraying was least successful and also turned the oats a little brown.

The oats and peas were much later sown and they were sprayed on the same day, they received their treatment at a much earlier stage in growth. In this case the oats stood up erect and afforded very little shelter. The radish seedlings were just then getting their third leaf. They were practically all killed, the oats undamaged and the peas just a trifle scorched, but not to any extent worth troubling about. Under a normal summer sun, I doubt if we should have been troubled with much more radish, but more came and the oats were then too far advanced to spray again.

I also tested the application of sulphate of iron on mangel seedlings being smothered by radish, with the result that some mangels received a temporary check and the radish when small enough were killed. If done before the mangels are thinned, it is safe and expedient and saves a lot of weeding.

The conclusion of the whole matter seems to be to spray early. As soon as weeds coming up be recognized as radish, mustard or any relation of theirs—get busy while they are unsheltered and their death is sure. Manager Hook bestowed a bonus on us when he recommended us to use iron sulphate on any smooth leaved crop.—The Spokesman.

AT NEWBURGH ANNIVERSARY.

The Rev. Mr. Schmidtknecht to Speak at Services.

Tomorrow the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Newburgh, Rev. F. W. Schuka, pastor, will celebrate her fortieth anniversary. The Rev. A. Schmidtknecht of this city is to be the speaker at the first service to be held at 10:30. The morning service at the Spring Street German Lutheran Church will be omitted. Evening service, English, will be held at 7:30 and the subject of the sermon will be "Objects Gained by the Ascension of Christ." As there will be no morning service, a large congregation is anticipated in the evening.

Playground Association Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Kingston Park and Playground Association on Thursday, the 8th of June, at 8 p. m., at the county building, corner of John and Crown streets.

ADVANCEMENT FOR KINGSTON MAN

Alfred Spearman, who has been the local manager the past couple of years for S. B. Thing & Company, Inc., the uptown shoe dealers, has been advanced by the firm to the position of manager of their store in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Spearman is a New Hampshire boy and a wide-awake one too, whose ability to introduce original methods and please customers has shown itself in the largely increased business enjoyed by Thing & Company under his management. Mr. Spearman's new position affords him many opportunities for future success which his Kingston friends will note with interest; incidentally he is the youngest manager in the whole chain of Thing stores.

The most unusual black satin cape shown here is dubbed "The Dragon" because of the richly embroidered monster on the brilliant satin. A most impressive garment undoubtedly, for it falls in deep folds from the throat and measures yards and yards around the bottom. A high collar with witchet lining is arranged so that it can fasten high or low, as the wearer desires.

made by Mr. Pells, there are now thirty-seven farmers in the town of Milan who are applying the treatment. These men have an aggregate of four hundred thirty-three acres of treated oats planted.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, June 3.—The American League race so far has been one where the reverse English has been the rule. Several of the teams which were figured as sure tail enders have been gumming up things in an uncanny way by walloping everything and everybody in sight and giving themselves the appearances of champions. Those who were figured as sure semi-finalists have been groggy from the start.

But it seems to us that another month will find conditions normal again; will see the spring flowers faded and the long-bloom plants in their fullest blossom.

In our opinion, the Indians have shot their bolt—and the Senators soon will seek lower levels. The Indians have been the surprise of the baseball year. Those who have analyzed their work to date feel, however, that they have played beyond themselves and, at the same time, have gathered in all the breaks.

In the Sixth City the folks threaten tar and feathers for anyone who opines that the Indians won't finish one-two-three. But it is hard to figure out such a high place for the Indians in October, after one has viewed the doings of the other seven clubs. In Cleveland they overlook the fact that the team, as a whole, is a weak hitting combination which, up to the present, has been extremely lucky, inasmuch as the bulk of the swats exuded by its hireling have come at critical moments.

That's luck to hit always when hits means runs to never waste hits. And that's what has happened to Cleveland. Furthermore, their young pitchers have been breezing along at a wonderful clip. Sooner or later they must slip a bit. The strain will tell. And then the Indians must slip gradually down the chutes.

The Senators have been blessed by inclement weather throughout the spring. This has enabled Clark Griffith to work Walter Johnson in about every third game. That's a huge advantage for the Washington crowd. But when the double header season gets under way and Johnson will be able to work only once in every five or six games, a different story can be written concerning Washington.

The Senators have a fair ball team without Johnson; a mighty good ball team without him. But it isn't a club that looks good enough to win the pennant when compared with several other outfits in the Johnsonian circuit.

Having oggled all of the eight clubs, we have come to believe that the Red Sox, Yankees and possibly the White Sox will be in the final fight for the hunting honors unless all present signs point wrong. If the Yankee batters come out of their two months' slump, they will prove to be the most dangerous club in the league. This is not said merely because we happen to live in Gotham and like to speak kindly concerning the home team. It is because the Yankees have shown that if their men ever begin to hit they are going to travel with reckless speed.

Since the season began the Yankees have been hovering near first place. They have accomplished this despite the fact that their heavy hitters—Baker, Magee, Gedeon, Pipp and Gilhooley—have amassed a grand average of little more than .200. Sooner or later those boys are going to begin macing the offerings of the opposition. Then something is likely to happen.

Furthermore, the Yankees have had to get along without any real help from their veteran hurling trio—Caldwell, Keating and Fisher. The three are warm weather men. The torrid spell is almost on us. They'll take advantage of that and soon ought to be pitching much tighter games than they did during the first month or two.

The Tigers aren't out of the race by any means—but they aren't in it. Putrid pitching in spots and weak hitting on occasions has been the cause for the Detroit slip. The pitchers may come around within the next few weeks. If they do, and the clubbers begin finding the ball again, the Tigers won't be some nasty climbing. But if the pitchers don't come being so charitable toward the enemy the Tigers must be counted out of it.

The Rev. Dr. P. N. Chas. will preach at Lake Minnewaska tomorrow morning.

MRS. JOY IS TO BE DISPOSSESSED

Order Granted to Evict Lone Tenant of "Long House"—She Has Claim Pending in Surrogate's Court Against Murphy Estate.

This morning in city court an order dispossessing Mrs. Anna Joy was granted by City Judge Brinnier in the action brought by John Gitty, as agent, against her. Robert G. Groves appeared for Mr. Gitty, and there was no appearance on the part of Mrs. Joy.

Mrs. Joy is a tenant in the famous "Long House" on Broadway at West Pierpont street, which was owned by Maurice Murphy, who died some time ago. In order to settle up the estate for the heirs, who live in Ireland, the executor of the estate, John Gitty, was authorized by Surrogate Gilt to sell the "Long House," which was bought by St. Peter's Church, which paid $2,000 for the property.

All of the tenants were notified to move and did so with the exception of Mrs. Joy. The present action was brought to evict her on the grounds that she had not paid her rent.

Mrs. Joy has brought a claim against the Murphy estate to recover $373 which she claims is due her for boarding and caring for Mr. Murphy during his life time. The claim is contested and a hearing has been had in the matter before Surrogate Gilt in surrogate's court, when the matter is still pending.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke).
It was a bad day for the eastern teams in the National League. All went down to defeat.

The Giants' home coming was enthusiastic as far as the crowd was concerned. But it ended disastrously when McGraw's men were defeated for the first time this season by a western club.

Twice this week the Giants had a chance to jump into a tie for first place and both times they lost.

The Nationals, although they did not play, jumped into the American League lead again, because the Browns put it over the Indians.

We have another western club in the first division now. The Reds huddled the Braves.

Those nine inning rallies gave the Cubs a victory over the Braves and the Cardinals one over the Phillies.

Those pesky Pirates are liable to start their plank walking stunt any time. Ask the Dodgers.

The Giants received loving cups from an admirer on their return. Moral—Beware of the flowing bowl.

Base Ball This Afternoon.

A good baseball game is expected at the Athletic Field this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when the Kingston and Albany high school teams will cross bats. Albany has defeated Troy this year and expects to win tomorrow's game, but the Kingston team will put up a stiff battle. A big crowd is expected to be present.

KINGSTON PLAYS ALBANY GARNETS

Fast Game Scheduled at McVey's Field on Delaware Avenue on Sunday Afternoon—Game Called at 3 O'Clock.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at McVey's Field on Delaware avenue the fast Kingston team is scheduled to clash with the Garnets of Albany, one of the fastest semi-professional teams in the upper part of the state. The game is likely to be very fast as Kingston is anxious to register another win. The Garnets were to have played here recently, but the game was called off at that time owing to the illness of a resident near the ball field. Kingston will have some of the fastest players in this section in its lineup and the "fans" are assured of a lively game.

Today the Kingstons were scheduled to play the Schenectady Locomotive Club at Athletic Field, weather permitting, while Kingston High School was scheduled to play Troy High School.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to the Freeman.

New York, June 3.—The market reflected a general recovery of poise on the part of the speculative and investment securities at the opening. Changes were irregular, with a majority of stocks showing gains but during the first 15 minutes buying of many issues became urgent and vigorous advances occurred. Willys-Overland attracted most attention with an advance of 12 points to 306. Marine preferred was the feature of the general list, moving up 2 1/2 to 98, with the buying coming from interests connected with the reorganization. Reading advanced to 101 1/2 and Erie rallied to 38 1/2. There was a renewal of the persistent buying of Norfolk and Western, which gained 2 points to 132. Kennicott Copper was in better demand, rising 1/2 to 53 1/2. Steel Common showed a strong tone and after receding 1/2 to 83 1/2, moved up to 84. The market closed irregular. Nearly all the speculative interest in the last hour was attached to the trading in the motor stocks, when General Motors sold as high as 549 against 515 at the opening. Further gains were made in Willys-Overland, which sold at 314 and in Chandler Motor, which moved up to above 121, an advance of over ten points for the day. Norfolk and Western continued in good demand and rose 4 points to 134, a new high record. Canadian Pacific was weak, declining 2 points to 174. Government bonds were unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

WHY NOT COUNT? SPELLING CONTEST

Port Ewen Approves Attitude of School Superintendent Gillette on Contests Among Students—Notes of Church Services.

Port Ewen, June 3.—At a contest held Thursday afternoon, Mildred Crook and Jacquelyn Monroe were selected as the two best spellers in Public School No. 13, and will represent that school in the town contest to be held by Superintendent John U. Gillette on Tuesday, June 6, at 1 p. m., at Port Ewen Public School No. 13. We think this is a move in the right direction and although the time given to prepare for the contest has been short, the pupils are manifesting a keen interest in the work. Why not have a town or county contest next year, using the same list of words?

CAPTIVE BEGGED TO DIE BY SHOT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Marathon, Texas, June 3.—Sergeant I. Sturmwald, Troop A, Fourteenth Cavalry, who guarded Lieut.
Col. Natividad Alvarez and Manuel Torres, Mexican prisoners in the Boquillas raid, today told a story of a conflict between pity and duty in which duty won. He said:

"It was my business to watch the prisoners on the long ride to Marathon from the Rio Grande. For the minute it was all the business I had and they were surely watched. Our first camp was at McKinney Springs.
There we gave the Mexicans steak and onions and coffee—just what men had."

"They couldn't seem to realize it.
Alvarez refused to eat at first, but he ordered Torres to do so. The lieutenant colonel, it seemed, feared the food was poisoned and wanted to have some one else try it."

"Torres is little more than a boy.
When we took road again he told me his story. His father, he said, was a poor farmer in the Sacramento district. They had little to eat and when, six months ago, Alvarez at the head of fifty or more bandits told him there were food and new clothes to be had in abundance in Gringo stores along the border, he followed. He had been raised, he said, to hate the Gringo, and rather liked the idea."

"He claimed he had not been in the actual raid on the Deemers store but he admitted getting his clothes from some of the raiders who had.
"He told how the band broke after an American pursuit became a certainty. He had hidden in the desert for three nights until his tongue was swollen and black and he thought he must die of thirst. It was then that he went to the water hole, though the hole was covered by American cavalrymen, and begged a drink."

"He expected, he said, to be shot, but he wanted to drink first. Then as he went on, he begged me to intercede for him. He showed me a bit of handkerchief that was his mother's. He showed me a bit of ribbon that his senorita had given him as a token of love and luck."

"And he told me finally if I would get him a lawyer he would be grateful, and once free, would come and work for me or do anything I asked, as long as he had breath."

"I pitied him, way down deep, but I could not show my pity. I looked at the officer who had led the boy and thought evil things. I remembered how raiding murderers had killed a tiny child, and how they had dared to come on American soil."

"I told Torres to be still, that I could do nothing. Then he pleaded to be shot. It would be much more honorable, he said, than to be hanged, as he had heard it was the custom in Gringo land."

"Again I told him be still.
"We drove at night, mostly, to avoid heat and all through the night Torres would ask me in his soft, pathetic Spanish for a quick end.
"You can't appreciate the effect of it all—moonlight and stars and the despair of boy who had been and was a traitor. But they're here now and turned over to the sun. I am through, and I've lived up to the oath I took when I enlisted. But, I'm glad I'm through and that oath remains unbroken. My hope is I won't have another detail like it."

How To Make Bordeaux Mixture—

Nearly Time to Spray for Blight.

Bordeaux Mixture is made with five pounds of lump lime, five pounds of copper sulphate crystals, and fifty gallons of water. Slake the lime carefully so as to get the smooth paste free from lumps.
Then dilute it so it will pour like molasses. Dissolve the copper sulphate by suspending it in a clean cloth sack in about four to five gallons of water. It is best to do this in a wooden vessel which does not have iron hoops as the copper sulphate attacks the iron in the hoops. When ready to make the Bordeaux, pour alternately the slaked lime, and then the iron sulphate through a strainer into the sprayer, and when all of the two solutions are in, put in enough more water to make the solution up to fifty gallons. The purpose of straining the ingredients is to keep out any particles which might clog the spray nozzle.

What One Potato Association in the State is Planning to Do.

All members of the association will spray their potatoes at least every ten days throughout the summer. There is no set time for such spraying. In general the best sprayers aim to spray every time there is a new growth of leaves to be protected, and they prefer to get the spray on just before the rain.
Quincy, to high cost of Copper-Sulphate this year, those who usually use Bordeaux mixture will very likely use Pyrox. Pyrox is very highly recommended by people who have used it for both an insecticide and a fungicide. In a normal year, however, Bordeaux is much cheaper.

If Bordeaux is used as a 3-3-50 for the first two or three sprays, and if the season is wet, 25-5-50 should be used for the later sprays.
Fris Green or Arsenate of Lead is added to the mixture for killing bugs, at the rate of 3 lbs Arsenate of Lead paste, or 1 1/2 lbs Arsenate of Lead, powdered, or 1 1/2 lbs Paris Green to 50 gallon solution.

ment of Agriculture, Albany, N. Y., dustry in New York State.

THE ARCH OF CTESIPHON.

Lone Remnant of a Once Wonderful and Magnificent City.

Just below Bagdad, on the Tigris, there stands a wonderful ruin known as the Arch of Ctesiphon—all that remains today of a once mighty city, the one time capital of the Parthian kingdom.

The ruins consist of an immense chamber, 81 feet wide by 154 feet long, with an arched roof in one single span of the whole width, the crown of the arch being 104 feet high. The edifice has a back, but in front is entirely open from top to bottom, displaying the whole of the magnificent vaulted chamber. On one side, at the same height as the arch, extends a kind of facade.
The whole building is constructed of burnt bricks about a foot square, and it is supposed that the front was originally cased with marble.

Historical records show Ctesiphon was a second Babylon in point of size and in the splendor of its palaces and princely houses. When taken by the Romans 100,000 captives and a rich booty fell into their possession. Later it became the capital of Persia. Here Chosroes, the twenty-third king of Persia, lived in great style. His throne was in a palace of prodigious height and so vast that it was supported by 40,000 silver columns. Its roof was enriched with 1,000 golden globes, which all had different movements and represented the planets and the various constellations.

Some centuries later this wonderful palace and city were sacked by the Arabs, since when it has gradually de-cayed, all that remains today being this single arch.—Wide World Magazine.

JEWISH PENTECOST OBSERVED TUESDAY

The Jewish Pentecost or Feast of Weeks (Shavuoth) will be celebrated on the 7th of June. Its name is derived from the fact that it is celebrated seven weeks after the second day of Passover. All the Biblical injunctions as to the manner in which the feast was to be observed indicate that it was originally agricultural in character. It was in reality a season of thanksgiving for the harvests that had been reaped, beginning with the barley harvest during the Passover to the wheat harvest at the beginning of the summer. The ceremonial offerings prescribed were in keeping with the God-given gifts of the soil that had been gathered.

In post-biblical times this feast was observed as the anniversary of the birth of Judaism with the promulgation of the divine law at Sinai. On this "Day of the Giving of the Law," as it was called by the rabbis, the Ten Commandments constitute part of the Scripture readings in the Synagogs. It is this historical aspect of the feast that has been emphasized in the non-agricultural life, which the Jews were compelled to live for centuries.

When the Reform Synagog introduced the rite of confirmation for the Jewish youth, the Pentecost, by virtue of its traditional association with the ancient revelation, was the day most naturally selected for charging the young boys and girls through an impressive public ceremony, with the meaning of the Jewish faith and with the duty of leading a high and religious and moral life.

The agricultural side of the feast, however, was not lost sight of, in that it was customary to decorate home and synagog with plants and flowers in season. In addition to a portion from the Pentateuch, the charming story of Ruth was prescribed in the synagog because the idyllic scene of harvesting which it contains was in keeping with the celebration of the Harvest Feast. Those observant customs that originated in post-biblical times add a second day to that enjoined in the Bible.

PITCHERS ANNEX THIRTY GAMES A YEAR

Some Pitching Stars.

Manager Bill Donovan of the New York Yankees declares that Ray Caldwell will win 30 games this season. While one must admit that Caldwell is a grand pitcher and Donovan is an excellent judge of pitching ability, we wonder if the New Yorks' manager realizes the task he is imposing upon Caldwell. Does Donovan know that there are but six pitchers in the game at the present time who have been able to turn in 30 victories in a season, and that four of them are lucky to pitch in that number of games in a year now, much less turn in victories in 30 or more contests?

Alexander the Great and Walter Johnson are the only hurlers in baseball today who are likely to reach that figure again. This wonderful pair of hurlers have only been able to reach the 30 mark once and both needed quite a lot of help from their teammates. The veteran Mathewson leads the modern pitchers in this respect, having won more than 30 games in four seasons. The other hurlers now in the game, though not twirling often, are Jack Coombs, who won 31 games in 1910; Joe Wood captured 34 in 1912, and Ed Walsh, who reached the wonderful mark of 40 victories in 1906. It is out of the question to think that Matty Wood, Coombs or Walsh will ever perform the feat again, and unless Washington can score more runs for Johnson, the Idaho wonder probably will never reach the 30 mark again.

Only two pitchers have been able to keep the opposing team below an average of 2.50 earned runs per game in getting their 30 victories, which shows how much help a pitcher needs from his teammates. Johnson and Alexander were the two hurlers who went below this mark, each cutting the average below two earned runs per game. With the Yankees struggling along in the second division Caldwell has three times gone through the season allowing less than two earned runs per game, but has never been able to turn in 25 victories.

BILL DONOVAN'S WILD START

Manager of New York Yankees Had Hard Time in Finding Control in His Early Days.

Some of these young pitchers who are having a tough time finding control enough to help them into the big league will do well to recall the early days of Bill Donovan. In his later years, "Wild Bill" became one of the most dependable twirlers in the history of baseball, but when he broke in, he was truly horrible. That's why he was lost by an overwhelming score. A week later he was started against the famous Baltimore Orioles. They made nine hits, drew seven passes and benefited by three wild pitches. All this was in 1898, and Donovan won but one game that year. Bill captured but one victory the next year, when he pitched for Brooklyn, and in 1900 he was at Hartford for seasoning. In 1901 he came to earth and then soared as a star, winning 25 of 40 games.

DIAMOND NOTES

Hal Chase is the baseball hero of Cincinnati.

Jimmy Callahan says he is satisfied with the Pirates.

Fleider Jones is having a hard time as a "miracle man."

Cal Brown, former Mack and Yank, is with the Memphis nine.

The Cleveland club has asked for waivers on Zip Hagerman.

Our country may need its young men, but baseball first yelled for help.

The Washington baseball club used to be a joke—but that was many years ago.

Jack Knight is sure a shining light around that initial sack. What's in a name, anyway?

Don't indulge in snap judgment. Oftentimes the rookie who needs a haircut is a diamond in the rough.

Other clubs carry jokesmiths, but Pat Moran of the Phillies takes the game seriously, so Josh Devore had to go.

Hal Chase is playing better ball this year than since he first joined the Yankees. He is leading in stolen bases and tops the league in hitting.

The ball players who are busy writing testimonials for soft drinks may be kidding the public, but they are not slipping anything over on their managers.

"Wild Bill" Donovan.

Bill was traded all over the old National league and to several other clubs on the Atlantic coast before he settled down.

Donovan's big debut was for Washington against the Giants. He entered a wild and woolly fray in the fifth inning. The Giants made five runs in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh, and then the game was called on account of darkness. A short time later Bill was given a chance to work again, this time against Louisville. Donovan walked six men, first in one of Duany Hey's

PLANK HOPES TO PITCH UNTIL HE IS FORTY-FIVE.

Eddie Plank, the former Athletic and St. Louis Federal pitcher, who is now with the Browns, refuses to be counted out. He scoffs at the idea that he won't amount to much this season, and confounds his critics by the assertion that he expects to keep on pitching in the majors until he is 45 years old. According to all that dope, the hero of Gettysburg will stick around another five years. In a garrulous moment the other day he consented to talk about himself. Here is what he had to say:

"I've never had a sore arm, and when I quit the game it will be because I'm tired of it. I'm forty now, but I'm going to stick in the big leagues for five more years. At forty-five then, I think I'll be prepared to stay at home. Pitching is a job. It must be studied by the pitcher. He must study the other fellow, the batter, and then give him what he knows he cannot hit. That's the way I have pitched for fifteen years. The fellow with the fast ball will last longer than the one with the curve. I'll pitch five fast ones to a single curve or slow ball. But the winning pitcher must have the combination. He must mix 'em to the batter. Control is the biggest point. If you can put it where you want, then you'll win more games than you lose."

Early Pipe Organ Builders.

The first pipe organ in history was made by Cleobius, an Alexandrian mechanic, about 300 B. C. According to the descriptions of old writers, it was believed to have represented a stage of efficiency not attained again until the eighteenth century. It was praised by Cicero and emperors found pleasure in playing it. History is able to record a pope as organ-builder—Syvester II, who is believed to have constructed a hydraulic organ.

Book Agent's Plea.

After you hear the agent talk about the books he's selling, you wonder how he can have the heart to part with them.

LAWS THAT ARE NOT LAWS.

Many Statutes in England That Simply Could Not Be Enforced.

There are many written laws in England which the unwritten law permits us to break. One of the most surprising of these is playing football. Strictly speaking, football is illegal. "Whereas there has been heretofore great disorder caused by a company of lewd and disorderly persons using that unlawful exercise of fute ball at their pleasures" are the opening words of an act of parliament passed in 1602, and any one who "uses that unlawful exercise" is still liable to a fine of twelve pence.

"Why don't you take the pledge?" This piece of advice is offered every day by magistrates to what the police call "confirmed drunks" when they appear in the courts, and excellent advice it is. But, all the same, in offering it the magistrate is breaking a law himself.

According to an act of Edward VI's reign, which has never been repealed, people who conspire with or induce others to abstain from certain drinks and foods are liable to imprisonment as rogues and vagabonds. You may take the pledge yourself, but you may not advise other people to.

An act which has been on the statute book for more than 200 years declares that persons assembling or causing others to assemble in any "booth, theater or place of public entertainment" after 10 o'clock in the evening are violating the written law.—Pearson's.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, June 3.—The American League race so far has been one where the reverse English has been the rule. Several of the teams which were figured as sure tail-enders have been gumming up things in an uncanny way by walloping everything and everybody in sight and giving themselves the appearance of champions. Those who were figured as sure semi-finalists have been groggy from the start.

But it seems to us that another month will find conditions normal again; will see the spring flowers faded and the long-bloom plants in their fullest blossom.

In our opinion, the Indians have shot their bolt—and the Senators soon will. Those who have analyzed their work to date feel, however, that they have played beyond themselves and, at the same time, have gathered in all the breaks.

In the Sixth City the folks threaten tar and feathers for anyone who opines that the Indians won't finish one-two-three. But it is hard to figure out such a high place for the Indians in October, after one has viewed the doings of the other seven clubs. In Cleveland they overlook the fact that the team, as a whole, is a weak hitting combination which, up to the present, has been extremely lucky, inasmuch as the bulk of the swats landed by its hitting have come at critical moments.

That's luck to hit always when hits means runs—to never waste hits. And that's what has happened to Cleveland. Furthermore, their young pitchers have been breezing along at a wonderful clip. Sooner or later they must slip a bit. The strain will tell. And then the Indians must slip gradually down the chute.

The Senators have been blessed by inclement weather throughout the spring. This has enabled Clark Griffith to work Walter Johnson in about every third game. That's a huge advantage for the Washington crowd. But when the double header season gets under way and Johnson will be able to work only once in every five or six games, a different story can be written concerning Washington.

The Senators have a fair ball team without Johnson; a mighty good ball team without him. But it isn't a club that looks good enough to win the pennant when compared with several other outfits in the Johnsonian circuit.

Having looked all of the eight clubs we have come to believe that the Red Sox, Yankees and possibly the White Sox will be in the final drive for the hunting honors unless all goes a rags point wrong. If the Yankee batters come out of their two month slump, they will prove to be the most dangerous club in the league. This is not said merely because we happen to live in Gotham and like to speak kindly concerning the home team. It is because the Yankees have shown that if their men ever begin to hit they are going to travel with reckless speed.

Since the season began the Yankees have been hovering near first place. They have accomplished this despite the fact that their heavy hitters—Baker, Magee, Gedeon, Pipp and Gilheoley—have amassed a grand average of little more than .200. Sooner or later those boys are going to begin making the offerings of the opposition. Then something is likely to happen.

Furthermore, the Yankees have had to get along without any real help from their veteran hurling trio—Caldwell, Keating and Fisher. The three are worn weather men. The fourth spell is almost on us. They'll take advantage of that and soon ought to be pitching much tighter games than they did during the first month or two.

The Tigers aren't out of the race by any means—but they aren't in it. Purit pitching in spots and weak hitting on occasions has been the cause for the Detroit slip. The pitchers may come around within the next few weeks. If they do, and the clubbers begin finding the ball again, the Tigers will do some nasty climbing. But if the pitchers don't cease being so charitable toward the enemy the Tigers must be counted out of it.

MRS. JOY IS TO BE DISPOSSESSED

Order Granted to Evict Lone Tenant of "Long House"—She Has Claim Pending in Surrogate's Court Against Murphy Estate.

This morning in city court an order dispossessing Mrs. Anna Joy was granted by City Judge Brinnier in the action brought by John Gitty, agent, against her. Robert G. Groves appeared for Mr. Gitty, and there was no appearance on the part of Mrs. Joy.

Mrs. Joy is a tenant in the famous "Long House" on Broadway at West Pierpont street, which was owned by Maurice Murphy, who died some time ago. In order to settle up the estate for the heirs, who live in Ireland, the executor of the estate, John Gitty, was authorized by Surrogate Gill to sell the "Long House," which was bought by St. Peter's Church, which paid $2,000 for the property.

All of the tenants were notified to move and did so with the exception of Mrs. Joy. The present action was brought to evict her on the grounds that she had not paid her rent.

Mrs. Joy has brought a claim against the Murphy estate to recover $373 which she claims is due her for boarding and caring for Mr. Murphy during his life time. The claim is contested and a hearing has been had in the matter before Surrogate Gill in surrogate's court, when the matter is still pending.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke). It was a bad day for the eastern teams in the National League. All went down to defeat.

The Giants' home coming was enthusiastic as far as the crowd was concerned. But it ended disastrously when McGraw's men were defeated for the first time this season by a western club.

Twice this week the Giants had a chance to jump into a tie for first place and both times they lost.

The Nationals, although they did not play, jumped into the American League lead again, because the Braves put it over the Indians.

We have another western club in the first division now. The Reds hurled the Braves. Those nine inning rallies gave the Cubs a victory over the Braves and the Cardinals one over the Phillies.

Those pesky Pirates are liable to start their plank walking stunt any time. Ask the Dodgers.

The Giants received loving cups from an admirer on their return. Moral—Beware of the flowing bowl.

Base Ball This Afternoon.

A good baseball game is expected at the Athletic Field this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when the Kingston and Albany high school teams will cross bats. Albany has defeated Troy this year and expects to win tomorrow's game, but the Kingston boys will put up a stiff battle. A big crowd is expected to be present.

KINGSTON PLAYS ALBANY GARNETS

Fast Game Scheduled at McVey's Field on Delaware Avenue on Sunday Afternoon—Game Called at 3 O'Clock.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at McVey's Field on Delaware avenue the fast Kingston team is scheduled to clash with the Garnets of Albany, one of the fastest semi-professional teams in the upper part of the state. The game is likely to be very fast as Kingston is anxious to register another win. The Garnets were to have played here recently, but the game was called off at that time owing to the illness of a resident near the ball field. Kingston will have some of the fastest players in this section in its lineup and the "fans" are assured of a lively game.

Today the Kingstons were scheduled to play the Schenectady Locomotive Club at Athletic field, weather permitting, while Kingston High School was scheduled to play Troy High School.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 3.—The market reflected a general recovery of poise on the part of the speculative and investment securities at the opening. Changes were irregular, with a majority of stocks showing gains but during the first 15 minutes buying of many issues became urgent and vigorous advances occurred. Willys-Overland attracted most attention with an advance of 12 points to 306. Marine preferred was the feature of the general list, moving up 2 1/2 to 98, with the buying coming from interests connected with the reorganization. Reading advanced to 112 1/2 and Erie called to 38 1/2. There was a renewal of the persistent buying of Norfolk and Western, which gained 2 points to 132. Kennicott Copper was in better demand, rising 1/2 to 53 1/2. Steel Common showed a strong tone and after receding 1/2 to 83 1/2, moved up to 84.

The market closed irregular. Nearly all the speculative interest in the last hour was attached to the trading in the motor stocks, when General Motor sold as high as 549 against 515 at the opening. Further gains were made in Willys-Overland, which sold at 314 and in Chandler Motor, which moved up to above 113, an advance of over ten points for the day. Norfolk and Western continued in good demand and rose 4 points to 134, a new high record. Canadian Pacific was weak, declining 2 points to 174. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

WHY NOT COUNT? SPELLING CONTEST

Port Ewen Approves Attitude of School Superintendent Gillette on Contests Among Students—Notices of Church Services.

Port Ewen, June 3.—At a contest held Thursday afternoon, Mildred Crook and Jacquelyn Monroe were selected as the two best spellers in Public School No. 13, and will represent that school in the town contest to be held by Superintendent John U. Gillette on Tuesday, June 6, at 1 p. m., at Port Ewen Public School No. 13. We think this is a move in the right direction and although the time given to prepare for the contest has been short, the pupils are manifesting a keen interest in the work. Why not have a town spelling contest next year, using the same list of words?

Miss Mary F. Bishop of Broadway is the guest of friends in Poughkeepsie. Marvin Elsworth has built an iron fence in front of his residence on Salem street.

Mrs. Mamie Melville, who has been the guest of friends in Esopus, has returned to her home on Salem street.

Circle No. 4 of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church, will hold its lawn social on July 14.

What is there that braces a chap up like a "Helmar" Turkish cigarette? Nothing!
Why "Helmar" just puts you back in the saddle.
Yes, sir, "Helmar" for mine!

The mildest tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish. The best tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish. Don't pay ten cents for anybody's cigarette until you have tried "Helmar," a fascinating, elevating, gentleman's smoke.
